READY FOR 2D DRAFT LOTTERY JUNE 28

Order Numbers for 744,865 Men to Be Drawn at Washington

By International News Service.

Washington, June 25.—The second draft lottery will be conducted at the Capitol Friday morning at 9 o'clock, it was announced by the War Department today. At that time the order numbers of the 744,865 twenty-one-year-old registrants who enrolled on June 5 will be drawn.

Although only one-tenth of the number of men will be drawn this year, it is expected that the drawing will be marked with the same simple but impressive ceremony. Secretary of War Baker, with Provost Marshal General Crowder and members of the Senate and House will be present. The same big bowl from which the drawing for 10,000,000 was conducted last year will be used again.

The numbers, printed on black paper and enclosed in capsules, will be checked off on a huge blackboard, where they may be easily seen by the telegraph operators, who will flash them out over the country.

Officers estimated today that there would be only about 1,200 key numbers in the big bowl to be drawn this year, as the total who will be affected is only 744,865. The drawing will be as careful as possible, however, and the key numbers will be recorded exactly as they were one year ago.

Wellman, Wounded 'Ace,' Asks Another Chance at Huns

Lieutenant William E. Wellman of Cambridge, of the French flying [illegible] presented himself at the British and Canadian recruiting mission in New York for re-enlistment. Lieutenant Wellman has been decorated with the French croix de guerre and wears his wounded stripes upon his sleeves, but he is bored with the enforced inactivity of three months.

Lieutenant Wellman was retired from the service because of wounds received in one of the most daring feats of air warfare. He alone brought down four German aeroplanes before he himself was brought to earth by Hun anti-aircraft guns.

Lieutenant Wellman was attached to a French escadrille, carrying out the aviation program on the German sector. The duty of these airmen is to protect French aircraft engaged in observing the German lines, taking photographs and regulating artillery movements.

Thousands of School Children to Sing at Loyalty Exercises

Thousands of Boston school children will participate in exercises on historic Boston Common next Saturday, which has been designated "Children's Day" of "loyalty week." It is expected the children will gather near the bandstand and listen to a simple patriotic address by some leading citizen. They will sing "The Star Spangled Banner" as their part in the program.

Superintendent of Schools Frank-lin B. Dyer said today that he is willing to assist the Boston Public Safety Committee in any way he can to make Children's Day a success.

Mrs. Eva W. White, director of school centres, said she thought the plan to have children congregate on the Common and take part in a simple exercise an excellent one.

The committee named by Victor A. Heath, chairman of the Boston Public Safety Committee, to assist him in arranging for "Loyalty Week," will meet today at City Hall to discuss the tentative daily program and make further plans.

GERMANY DEFIANT ON BELGIUM

"We Do Not Wish to Bind Our Hands," Says Kuhlmann; Hopes for a Hun Peace

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Basle, June 25.—"Germany and her allies wish to live within the frontiers traced by history, with possessions beyond the seas corresponding to our greatness and richness and our capacity for organization," declared Dr. Richard Von Kuhlmann, the German foreign secretary, in an address before the Reichstag, defining the war aims of the central powers.

The foreign secretary also said that the German allies wanted freedom of trade to all parts of the world.

"Regarding Belgium, we do not wish to bind our hands while our adversaries do not express themselves," added Dr. von Kuhlmann.

"We hope that our enemies will understand it is a dream and an illusion to hope to fight successfully against means which we have at our disposal, and that they will find that the moment has come to make peace offers corresponding to the situation, satisfying the vital necessities of Germany."

The foreign secretary stated that the permanent separation of Courland, Livonia and Esthonia was impossible.

Von Kuhlmann made reference to the conference of the rulers of the central powers at German great headquarters at which a new agreement between the powers was drawn up.

Beginning today the minimum charge of a shipment will be 50 cents.

BERLIN READY TO ADMIT FAILURE

Paris, June 25.—Another allied victory in Italy is reported today in dispatches from Rome. These state that the Italians and British forces on the northen mountain front in the region of the Asiago plateau have begun strong counter-attacks against the Austrians and have penetrated and captured the whole first line of the enemy's defence.

Washington, June 25.—The Austrians are in full retreat. They evidently foresaw the possibility of an Italian defeat, but never anticipated the possibility of their own defeat, says an official dispatch from Rome to the Italian embassy this afternoon.

Washington, June 25.—Germany already is preparing the people "back home" for an admission of failure of the entire 1918 campaign against the allies, according to confidential information received by the State Department today. The department withheld its source of information, but made it plain that it was entirely authentic.

Rome, June 25.—The report of the capture of 45,000 Austro-Hungarian prisoners by the Italians, sent from Rome to Washington, was a cable error, according to the Central News.

By International News Service.

eral confusion which always follows such quick operations, only meager accounts have come from the fighting zone so far.

The Piave River is still flooded and the freshet to some extent has hampered the Italian advance. Bridges across which the pursuing troops had to cross were swept away by the torrent.

Unless the river falls, it was stated today, it is unlikely that the major scale operations on the Piave front will last much longer. This is due to the difficulty in getting troops to the eastern bank to continue the attacks against the retiring Austrians.

The Italians have opened fresh attacks in the mountain zone (sector of the Asiago plateau) and have scored an advance there despite strong pressure from the enemy. There has been hard fighting in the Montebella and Monte Asolona sectors.

On the rest of the front the Austrians are now back to their old trenches east of the Piave.

Surrounding Austrians Too Big a Job, Say Washington Experts

By International News Service.

Washington, June 25.—Reports that the armies of Archduke Joseph and General Wurm had been surrounded and would be annihilated unless they surrendered, failed to impress army officers in the War Department here today.

They pointed out that General Wurm is in command of the fifth Austrian army, composed of probably fifty divisions, and stretching from the mountains to the sea. To surround such a force would be an operation so gigantic, they believed, that it was next to impossible under present conditions.

It was recalled that when the recent floods carried away bridges around Montello, some 40,000 Austrians were cut off. These were a part of General Wurm's command, and the belief was expressed that it was this force that had been surrounded.

Archduke Joseph's command has not yet been identified, it was said.

Rush of British Subjects to Enlist Expected Since Passage of Alien Draft Law

Major Kenneth D. Mariatt, head of the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission in Massachusetts, is in New York today conferring with the heads of the mission in reference to the Alien Draft Law which was ratified yesterday by the United States Senate, which provides that all British subjects between the ages of twenty and forty-four, shall be drafted at the expiration of a sixty-day period for voluntary enlistment.

The mission officials are preparing a detailed statement of the provisions of the new draft law which will be sent immediately to every eligible British subject in the United States. Meanwhile the work of accepting men who will volunt'arily enlist will be carried on vigorously.

It is expected that most of the British subjects in Massachusetts who are affected by the draft will volunteer because they realize that if they do this they will secure many advantages financially and otherwise that will not come to them if they wait until the expiration of the sixty-day period.

Captain C. L. O'Brien, who is in command of the Mission headquarters in the absence of Major Mariatt, said today:

"We have been officially notified of the ratification of the draft law by the United States Senate, and hope within a few days to be able to announce all the details. Without a knowledge of the details all British subjects between the ages of twenty and forty-four residing in the United States can take it for granted that there will be no possibility of dodging military service. They have got to do one thing or the other—either volunteer or be drafted."

Prisoners and Guns Taken by Canadians in Raid on Trenches

By International News Service.

London, June 25.—Canadians last night raided German trenches at Neuville Vitasse, taking twenty-two prisoners and six machine guns.

General Haig reported to the War Office today:

There was artillery firing and gas shelling at Merville and south of Avion and Villers-Bretonneux.

The text of the statement follows:

"Canadian troops raided the enemy's trenches last night at Neuville Vitasse and brought back twenty-two prisoners and six machine guns. A few prisoners and a machine gun were captured by us also in a successful raid south of the Scarpe.

Hostile artillery has been active during the night between Villers-Bretonneux and Morland, east, south of Avion and west of Merville, gas shells being employed freely.

Young Salvationist Spends Night in Shell Hole

Ranson D. Gifford, seventeen-year-old son of Colonel Adam Gifford of the New England forces of the Salvation Army, has been under shell fire in France for eight days, according to a letter received by his father.

"We're having a hard time of it over here, dad," writes young Gifford. "I was forced to sleep all night in a shell hole. I could hear those shells screeching, and maybe they didn't scare me. But I tore up wonderfully under the ordeal. In the morning I was fortunate in meeting Colonel Lawton of the United States army, with whom I breakfasted that day. And, perhaps I didn't enjoy that meal.

"The Salvation Army lassies are doing wonderful work over here. They deserve a great deal of praise. I drove a five-ton truck filled with merchandise valued at $50,000 over rough roads and near the front line German trenches under cover of darkness. I had to travel fast. I had to sleep and eat in the truck, it was an experience I'll never forget."

Germany's Newest Peace Offensive as Launched by Kuhlmann More Hypocrisy

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, June 25.—At the very moment when the State Department was making public confidential advices showing that Germany was preparing the German people for realization that the great war offensive in the West had failed for 1918, the cables brought to Washington this afternoon word that Germany's anticipated peace offensive had been initiated.

The first gun was fired by Dr. Richard von Kuhlmann, Foreign Secretary, and was typical of German junkerism. It already has been answered, officials pointed out, both by President Wilson in his "force to the uttermost" address, and by Secretary of State Robert Lansing in his Union College speech, when he declared that the war must go on "until the German people realize that their military masters cannot dominate the world."

Until the complete official text of Dr. Kuehlmann's address is received here official comment must be withheld. In fact, it was considered entirely likely that the first comprehensive utterance on the subject will come from President Wilson, when he makes his promised address at Mount Vernon on July 4.

Thisaddress already is expected to be one of the most important ever made by the President, and officials xpect him to tell the Central Powers not only some rather unpleasant truths, but also to reveal at least in part the plans to be followed in restoring conquered Russia.

Privately, however, officials declared that the Von Kuhlmann speech will make no change in the war situation. It simply demonstrates, they said, the utter inability of the Prussian leaders to understand that the world will have nothing to do with a "German made peace."

As an instance of the utter hypocrisy of the entire address, a high administration official pointed out that the attitude of the entente and the United States toward Belgium had been known to the world since the opening gun of the war was fired. Dr. Von Kuhlmann's declaration that Germany does not wish to bind herself while "our adversaries do not express themselves" was declared to be on a par with the original "scrap of paper" characterization.

One significant statement by Dr. Von Kuhlmann, officials carefully pointed out, was his statement that the German allies want "freedom of trade" to all parts of the world. This is a renewed official admission that Germany realizes her enemy, through an economic boycott, are in a position to hold Germany to strict accountability after the war. Taken in connection with previous utterances by Herr Ballin, the German steamship leader, and other German trade leaders, the statement of the Foreign Minister was declared here to be far more apparent than appears on the surface.

The entire address of the minister, officials declared, was plainly another appeal for a "made in Germany" peace, and they said that it will receive scant consideration either in the chancelleries of Europe or here.

DR. HOMER SWEARS HE TWICE PROMISED TO MARRY MRS. WILBUR

GEM-LOVE CASE NEAR ITS CLOSE

Dentist Says He Didn't Know Plaintiff Was "Old Enough to Be His Mother"

Dr. Joseph Homer wanted to marry Mrs. Madge E. Wilbur until last August, he testified today at his trial on the charge of stealing her jewels, valued at $17,500.

Twice he had asked her to marry him, he said, and he had likewise promised to marry her after she had attempted to take her life with morphine.

He declared that he did not know she was "old enough to be his mother" at that time. He thought she was between forty and forty-five years of age.

It is probable that the case will go to the jury tomorrow, from present indications.

In answer to questions by Assistant District Attorney Galagher, he said that the two occasions on which he had agreed to marry Mrs. Wilbur were July 1, 1916, and about Christmas time of the same year.

Q.—Any other time? A.—Yes, Dec. 2, 1916. I don't remember any other time.

Q.—How did you happen to make the second promise? A.—She asked me to. It was when she attempted suicide by taking morphine. She wanted to know if I would marry her if she were disgraced. I said, yes, I was willing.

MRS. WILBUR APPEALED TO HIM.

Q.—Were you anxious? A.—Somewhat anxious.

Q.—Why? A.—I can't tell why. It appealed to my natural inclinations.

Q.—What do you mean by natural inclinations? A.—Principally natural attraction.

Q.—Who was Dr. C. in your office? A.—I am Dr. C. The letter was a part of my office system.

Q.—You knew Mrs. Wilbur was old enough to be your mother? A.—I didn't think. I thought she was forty or forty-five years old.

Q.—Did you think she was capable of looking after her own affairs? A.—No, I didn't.

Q.—Did you tell Mrs. Wilbur you were slightly anxious to marry her? A.—No.

Q.—Or anxious? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—How many times did you promise to marry her? A.—I can't remember.

Q.—Why did you ask her on December 6? A.—Because I told her our relations must cease because of what had happened at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

FOLLOWED BY DETECTIVES.

Mrs. Wilbur told me to come to the hotel by a side entrance and avoid detectives. She complained that detectives following her everywhere. She wanted me to make arrangements about her property before we were married. She asked me to make an agreement not to marry again after she died. She said she didn't want another woman to have any use of her money after she was dead. After that she tried to take morphine.

Q.—Were you alone with Mrs. Wilbur when she attempted to take the morphine? A.—No, her maid was there.

Q.—And you discussed marriage openly before her? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did her statement that she didn't want to get married influence your decision not to marry her? A.—Not that alone. It was part of the incidents that influenced me later.

Q.—Was your money good? A.—No, fair.

Q.—When did you finally decide not to marry her? A.—Last August, when I returned to California to get affidavits for this case. Her maid then told me she had been going with other men.

THE "SAM JONES" TELEGRAM.

Mr. Gallagher here produced the "Sam Jones" telegram, sent by the doctor to Mrs. Wilbur's brother in this city.

Q.—You say in this telegram that Mrs. Wilbur had given her jewels to a young doctor. Who was he? A.—Me.

Q.—Had she given you her jewels on December 2? A.—Mrs. Wilbur had given me a statement saying that she would give me the jewels, and also a statement that she was going to give me an interest in her property.

Q.—What remained to be done to put you in possession of Mrs. Wilbur's property? A.—I don't know.

Q.—What was her property worth? A.—I don't know.

He said that he had seen the report of a commercial agency on Mrs. Wilbur and that it did not agree very well with what she had told him. He said he had never read the report through, only the first part of it. That was before he received her check for $2,700.

HARD DAMAGING GOSSIP.

Q.—Was it true, as stated in the Sam Jones telegram, that her relations with you were the cause of damaging gossip about her hotel? A.—I believe so.

Q.—Then you heard damaging gossip? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why didn't you sign your own name. A.—Because I thought it better to sign "A Friend."

Q.—Why didn't you sign that way? A.—I directed some one to sign it.

Q.—Who? A.—My porter. I think, his name is William Ragsdale.

Q.—Did you write out the telegram? A.—No, I told him to send it.

Q.—So this is William Ragsdale's composition? A.—No, I dictated it and he wrote it.

Q.—Why did you not get one of the five or six young women in your office to write it? A.—Bill was most convenient.

Q.—Why didn't you sign your own name? A.—I thought it the act of a disinterested friend, because I was looking out for her best interests.

Q.—Did you have a high regard for her property then? A.—No.

CONTINUED ANXIOUS.

Q.—When you were arrested in the New York station did you want to marry her? A.—I continued naturally anxious.

A letter to Mrs. Wilbur was introduced, in which references from the Book of Proverbs were quoted. One told of a woman who seeks a young man. And then says she has done no wrong. The other referred to qualities of a virtuous woman.

He testified that Mrs. Wilbur thought those references were applied to her.

Q.—After that did you still want to marry her? A.—Yes.

He said Mrs. Wilbur thought his continuing in her company very flattering. He said that he had studied the Bible, that he was born in Putnam County, Missouri, the son of Reverend Addison Wilburne, and that he had been twice divorced. The first time his wife divorced him, and "Cy" were remarried the same day. Later he divorced her in Los Angeles.

Q.—Did you keep all Mrs. Wilbur's letters? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you make any alterations in them? A.—No.

DENIES CHANGING LETTER.

He denied changing the word "friend" in a letter shown him.

He said that he had $14,000 in his office before he left Los Angeles for the East. He had $20,000, he said, and had kept $7,000 in a safe deposit vault for years.

Q.—Why didn't you deposit in the bank and get interest? A.—I preferred to keep money with me. I always had a natural inclination that I didn't care about interest.

Q.—Any better reason? A.—No.

Q.—Why did you gather up so much cash before leaving for Boston? A.—To invest it in business in the East. I didn't need cash for investments, but I carried large sums of money with me for years, in my inside coat pocket.

He denied that his secretary's knowledge of the money in the safe was so that she could be a witness, and said that he told the secretary to put $7,000 in the safe, so Mrs. Wilbur couldn't get it, because she wanted us to borrow some. The night before, on the street, he said, he had let her have $500. He said he had little idea of the value of her jewels, though some of his customers had given him diamonds to pay their dental bills. He kept the $7,000 with him while he was in Boston, and did not leave it in a bank or with the clerk at the Touraine because it would be embarrassing to Mrs. Wilbur if he had to have her identify him.

HOBOKEN OFFICE RAID IN HUNT FOR GRAFTERS

Hoboken, N. J., June 25.—The offices of the Tietjen & Lang Drydock Company were raided today by secret service men and city intelligence officers, who carried off automobile loads of books and papers. A connection with "complaints regarding irregularities in the carrying out of government contracts" was further reported the raids were connected with evidence of shipyard graft that caused similar raids in Brooklyn some time ago. Investigators are said to have uncovered that young boys, through political influence, have been placed on shipyard pay rolls at wages of from $20 to $60 a week.

Home and Country Always First, Declares State Regent of D. A. R.

By MRS. FRANK D. ELLISON,
Massachusetts State Regent, Daughters of the American Revolution.

"Home and Country" is the motto of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Our organization always stands for loyalty to the country. No movement could correspond more exactly to the aims and ideals of our society than does this of "Loyalty Week."

How to contribute their part in the great struggle for freedom and for democracy has been shown by the devotion and self-sacrifice of the daughters of the American Revolution from the very beginning of the great war. They have risen to the occasion. Their response has been one with the great pulsing heart of the nation.

Mrs. Frank D. Ellison.

The necessity for wholehearted Americanism has sunk deep into the consciousness of everyone, and aroused and inspired the thoughtful men and women of the land. There is no doubt that when Loyalty Week, with its fine program, is brought to a close, true patriotism will reach a higher standard and the great contest for honor, righteousness, justice, civilization and humanity be supported with a deeper fervor, and all will make the indomitable resolve to permit no limit to sacrifice when our country calls.

WOMEN IN WAR TALK LAND IN COURT

German Native Found Guilty of Attack on Somerville Neighbor

Discussion of the European war led to such hard feelings on the part of Mrs. Minnie H. Pohl, German born, toward Mrs. Nora A. Looney, both of West Somerville, that Mrs. Pohl, by way of clinching the argument, attacked her adversary, scratching and otherwise bruising her face, according to testimony in Somerville Police Court today.

Judge Wentworth found Mrs. Pohl guilty of assault and battery, and continued her case for sentence to July 1. In the meantime Mrs. Pohl is on probation.

Mrs. Pohl is thirty-eight years old, and Mrs. Looney, twenty-six. They live in the same house, a two-family building, at Nos. 14 and 16 Pearson avenue, owned by Mrs. Pohl and her husband, Herman A. Pohl. Mrs. Looney, her husband and baby have been tenants of the Pohls since last September.

TELLS OF ATTACK.

Mrs. Pohl was represented by George Hower and Mrs. Looney by Albert E. Hughes of Somerville.

On the stand Mrs. Looney testified that she had had several wordy altercations with Mrs. Pohl on the subject of the war; that yesterday morning when she came up from the cellar she discovered Mrs. Pohl hiding in the back entry; that Mrs. Pohl locked the outside and the kitchen doors, put the keys in her pocket, and barred the way, asking Mrs. Looney what she had to say about the war today; that the witness answered, "Nothing," whereupon Mrs. Pohl seized her by both cheeks, scratching her face, and then struck her on the side of the face with a kitchen range shovel.

When Mrs. Looney escaped she rushed to her own kitchen, where, she declared, Mrs. Pohl followed her, saying: "I will take your life before you leave my house."

Witness said she had given Mrs. Pohl notice on June 15 that they would quit the house July 1.

NATIVES OF GERMANY.

Mrs. Margaret McQuarrie, a neighbor, living a. No. 26 Pearson avenue, testified that Mrs. Looney ran into her kitchen in tears, showing her scratched face.

Mrs. Pohl, on the stand, admitted that she and her husband had been born in Germany, but said that Herman was a naturalized citizen of the United States. She denied the charge of assault, and denied also that she had ever discussed the war except to remark to Mrs. Looney that her husband, being an Irishman, "would never fight for the United States, outside of Great Britain."

ACCUSED "RUNNERS" FOR LAWYERS FACE COURT

As the result of a drive by the Massachusetts Bureau of Immigration to free the corridors of the Municipal Court of "runners" for lawyers, two men and one woman were before the court today. John M. Killeen, known as a "Royal Rooter," and Wladyslaw Kondratowicz, known as William Johnson of the South End, and Mrs. Minnie Di Glorio of the North End, appeared before Judge Creed. They were charged with violation of the Runners' act passed last year. All three pleaded not guilty. The case were continued until Thursday. Bail was fixed at $1,000 each.

Another event has been added to the long program for Navy Day, Saturday, June 29, in the Charles River Basin. Full measure and running over is the navy idea of a water carnival. The additional race is to be a motor race of nearly two miles between crews from the Aviation School and Bumkin Island.

This is the second additional event to be added within a week to a program which covered every phase of water sport that it is possible to show to the gaze of thousands at the same time. The first event was the Monte Criscc sack trick which Chief Bostswain's Mate Elliot Church is rehearsing daily at the Webb boathouse in Cambridge.

CHANCE FOR THRILL.

He can now do the trick to perfection and Bostonians who will recall what a sensation this stunt created at the Sportsman's show back in 1907, will have the opportunity to feel once more the thrills that come with seeing a man risk his life in the water, tied securely in a sack.

Crowds stood in front of the Filene store on Washington street, attracted by the exhibit of medals and cups to be given by the Boston AMERICAN to the winners in the navy events and individual winners in swimming and diving contests.

The arrangement of the trophies with picture- taken by AMERICAN staff photographers is a fine sample of the window decorators' art. The background of American flags and the navy pennants is strikingly patriotic. The photographs include those of Secretary Daniels and Assistant Secretary Franklin D. Roosevelt and high navy officials of the first naval district. Crowds which filled the sidewalk were present throughout the day.

TASTEFULLY ARRANGED.

Ralph Harlow, in charge of window display, and his assistants, certainly deserve much credit for the tasteful manner in which they arranged the exhibits.

Lieutenant Leon M. Little has announced the appointment of the board of referees of the events. Edward Babb, prominent in B. A. A. affairs, is the civilian member of the board, and will judge the swimming events. Lieutenant Albert L. Ware, in charge of navigation at the Cadet School, will judge the sailing events, and Lieutenant Nat Ayer, in charge of the Radio School, will judge the rowing events.

A board of protest, to be chosen among the captains, will be named later. This board will hear any protests arising over disputed races if there be any. If what the various crews in training for the events say is true there won't be any.

Professor Ready to Show Wilson Quick Road to Peace

Pacifists, attention!

If anyone would like to know how to end the world war within twenty-four hours let him ask Professor A. Braganza of Maiden.

To be sure, Professor Braganza won't tell offhand, for the only person he will tell is President Wilson, and he is willing to go to Washington and divulge his plan to the Chief Executive.

Until that time his home town must contain its impatience, and stray inquirers may cool their heels on Professor Braganza's doorstep at No. 84 Florence street without avail. He is guarding his secret. It all depends on the President whether or not the rest of us find it out. Professor Braganza is an astrologer.

3 AMENDMENTS REJECTED BY CONVENTION

The woman suffrage and State prohibition amendments were rejected by the Constitutional Convention today "without prejudice."

The ratification of the national prohibition amendment by the Legislature was said by Delegate Underhill of Somerville, chairman of the Committee on Liquor Traffic, to render action by the convention on the State amendment "needless."

Former Mayor H. Huestis Newton of Everett, an avowed advocate of woman suffrage, told the convention that the anticipated adoption of the Susan B. Anthony national suffrage amendment by Congress was sufficient reason for dismissing further consideration of the State amendment.

The convention also rejected the single tax amendment without discussion and paved the way for a reasonably early adjournment. With these three matters disposed of, the convention began debate on the amendment to regulate the use of billboards.

State politics is believed to have played a strong part in the rejection of the prohibition amendment. Candidates for office at the election this Fall realized that the prohibition question, if submitted to the people, would be more of less embarrassing to them. Senator Louis W. Weeks, candidate for re-election, was said to be particularly desirous of sidetracking the question. He had talked with President Wilson at Washington, and, it is said, quietly urged its ratification by the last Legislature.

Anti-liquor people were said to be satisfied to avoid a test vote by the people on State prohibition because the vote, if adverse, would militate against the ratification of the national amendment by the biennial Legislatures which meet in other States next year. The liquor people, realizing that national prohibition cannot come much within two years, were said to be satisfied to pocket the money that a campaign would have cost them.

President John L. Bates was apparently very much pleased by the "speed with care" policy adopted by the convention. The possibility of completing the work of the convention the latter part of July was not so remote.

NEWSBOYS SEEK 20,000 STAMP PLEDGES

Mrs. Saltonstall Is Confident Young "Hustlers" Campaign Will Meet With Success

When you buy this newspaper ask the newsboy for a thrift card. AMERICAN newsboys are accredited salesmen for War Savings Stamps.

By CONSTANCE WILLIAMS.

"If you haven't on your pledge button and if your blue triangle is not flying in your window, you are not with Uncle Sam on June 26th."

This is the ultimatum of loyal and patriotic Massachusetts women as voiced by Mrs. Phillip L. Saltonstall, chairman of the Women's War Saving Stamp Committee of Boston.

And should the women of Massachusetts not have the right to issue this ultimatum? It is a work typical of women. It requires patience and hard work. There is nothing brilliant or sensational about trudging the streets and urging pledges. There is nothing dramatic about pioneering and educating the people in the War Saving Stamp movement.

SOME RELUCTANT TO PLEDGE.

Mrs. Saltonstall's hours are from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m. and every minute is devoted to the recruiting of War Saving Stamps which are to flood Uncle Sam's coffers.

"This is part of the great educational movement to interest people in U. S. War Saving Stamps," said Mrs. Saltonstall, "and to arouse their interest to think in form of patriotic investment. The people are anxious to buy, but reluctant to pledge.

"Education along the lines of thrift, sacrifice, and loyalty which has been given through this campaign is immeasurable. Never have the women worked harder to interest the people. The factories and industrial plants have been wonderful. The employes have shown us every courtesy.

"They are quickly making the acquaintance of the Thrift Stamp. The factories have been very kind to allow us factory time. The labor unions have shown an excellent spirit of co-operation."

PRAISES THE LITTLE ONES.

Every one knows that the children have played the Thrift Stamp game in an intensified manner. Under every child's Thrift Stamp is a story of self denial and childish sacrifice. Along these lines Mrs. Saltonstall said:

"The children have been wonderful. Now we want the grown-ups to take this Thrift Stamp movement seriously. Do not wait to be asked. Take some of the burden off the shoulders of Uncle Sam. Take this just as seriously as the Red Cross or the Liberty Loan. Even if we haven't asked for money we have and are asking for pledges."

And so this time, Mr., Mrs. or Miss Grown Up, you buy a paper purchase that Thrift Stamp. Don't let the kiddies play the game alone. Mrs. Saltonstall has made every Boston man and woman a solicitor for Uncle Sam and the Thrift Stamps.

Buy that stamp or stamps—more power to Uncle Sam and less to the Huns—and buy those stamps NOW.

"Hogy" Rabinovich, King of the Newsboys, has told Mrs. Saltonstall that the newsboys are going to secure 20,000 pledges. Mrs. Saltonstall has implicit faith that the "newsies" will keep their word.

MANY 100 P. C. SUBSCRIBED.

Tomorrow evening there will be a patriotic rally at Municipal Building in South Boston for the purpose of arousing interest in the buying of War Saving Stamps. Sergeant Burn, Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and States. Saltonstall will be the speakers of the evening.

The factories which have recently been placed on the honor roll as a 100 per cent. subscribed are the Wooley Laundry in East Boston and the Hodge Boiler Works in East Boston. Mrs. Saltonstall says that the industries who are 100 per cent. subscribed will be announced daily.

Mrs. William J. Reagan of East Boston is one of the Thrift Stamp wonders. The first day Mrs. Reagan was out she secured 200 pledges to the Thrift Stamps.

dorsed the "Loyalty Week" idea include Mrs. Frank D. Ellison, Massachusetts State regent; Daughters of the American Revolution; E. Mark Sullivan, Exalted Ruler, Boston Lodge of Elks, and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. All believe Boston's "Loyalty Week" will increase the patriotic endeavors of the people.

The statements of Mrs. Ellison, Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Fitzgerald follow:

MRS. FRANK D. ELLISON, Massachusetts State Regent, Daughters of the American Revolution—"Home and Country" is the motto of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Our organization always stands for loyalty to the country. No movement could correspond more exactly to the aims and ideals of our society than does this of "Loyalty Week."

How to contribute their part in the great struggle for freedom and for democracy has been shown by the devotion and self-sacrifice of the Daughters of the American Revolution from the very beginning of the great war. They have risen to the occasion. Their response has been one with the great pulsing heart of the nation.

The necessity for whole-hearted Americanism has sunk deep into the consciousness of everyone, and aroused and inspired the thoughtful men and women of the land. There is no doubt that when Loyalty Week, with its fine program, is brought to a close, true patriotism will reach a higher standard and the great contest for honor, righteousness, justice, civilization and humanity be supported with a deeper fervor, and all will make the indomitable resolve to permit no limit to sacrifice when our country calls.

E. MARK SULLIVAN, Exalted Ruler, Boston Lodge of Elks—Every Elk will heartily commend the patriotic impulse that is behind "Loyalty Week."

A people can never attain its greatest objects by independent, individual thought and action. There must be the public manifestation of the common purpose and an enthusiastic promotion of a common will to effect it.

Man lives not by himself alone. We are unconsciously influenced by the thought and action of those about us. To do our part, perform his full duty to his God or country who is content to say, "I live a certain life, and I pay my taxes and my bills."

Loyalty is the spontaneous action of a united people moved by instinctive habits of thought to the public exposal of their country's cause.

The Order of Elks, a distinctively American fraternity, is founded on this principle.

You must be truly loyal as an individualist; he must let his light so shine that others will be inspired by his conduct.

Let us all, therefore, join in the public demonstrations that have been planned for "Loyalty Week" by the Boston Public Safety Committee.

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, former Mayor of Boston—Loyalty Week is a necessary counter to the German propaganda which has been undermining the foundations of institutions throughout the civilized world for the last fifty years.

For this reason Loyalty Week is bound to be of great value to our government and to our allies in stimulating the people to a realization of the danger that would result if the German agents succeed. German propaganda has been very insidious and it is astonishing even now to find people who have yet to be convinced that the real purposes of the ruling powers of Germany.

The leaders who have inculcated German propaganda are outside the pale of American citizenship.

No matter where you go—South America, Mexico, Russia, Great Britain itself—you will find in high places—and with ins. deprivation and hypocrisy—men who have been able to gain their point by methods almost unbelievable.

Let each citizen of Boston engage in the Loyalty Week activities and help to make it a success which it is bound to be.

DANIEL E. DENNY, Past Department Commander of the G. A. R.—I most heartily indorse this movement and not only this movement, but any movement that will tend to instill the love of country and of old glory into the hearts of our citizens.

I believe the G. A. R. is doing just this kind of work now and that it is admirably fitted for it. Anything that will tend to instill patriotism into the hearts of people who immigrate here from foreign lands is worthy of indorsement.

I would have them not only love and respect our country and our flag, but I would have them, yes, even eager to fight, and if need be to die for them. I have no sympathy for people who come to our nation, enjoy all its many privileges and who take no part in preserving them and defending them when threatened by foreign foe.

MRS. MUCK REGISTERS AS ALIEN ENEMY

Mrs. Karl Muck, wife of the former leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, now interned at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, leaving the Back Bay police station after having registered as an alien enemy, in company with a plain clothesman (at left) and Manager Charles A. Ellis of the Symphony Orchestra (at right).

Mrs. Karl Muck, the wife of Dr. Karl Muck who, once the leader of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is now interned for the duration of the war at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, registered at the Back Bay station under the Alien Enemy Law.

Accompanied by Charles A. Ellis, manager of the orchestra, Mrs. Muck drove up to the station with a smile that did not falter when half a dozen cameras were focused upon her. But the smile may have been one of nervousness rather than of enjoyment, for she twisted the chain that hung about her neck, and let her gaze wander from one to the other of the crowd that had gathered.

Dressed in black taffeta, with a black hat trimmed with white roses, Mrs. Muck went through the formula of registration.

"A disagreeable duty, it is," she said to the reporters, "but one that has to be done."

In spite of her twenty-five years, she did not appear to be more than nineteen.

WANT WILSON TO HEAD ALLIED COUNCIL

By SAM W. SMALL, JR.,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Washington, June 25.—The governments of the United States and the allied nations are considering in an informal way, the appointment of a political leader who will bear the same relations to the civil governments of the nations at war with Germany as General Foch does to the military forces of those governments.

A unified military command, long opposed and bitterly fought, has worked wonders in opposition to the united military and civil command of the enemy.

The question is now whether the United States and the allied governments shall take the further step and appoint a political leader who will have the same authority to dispose of the political forces of the several governments in opposition to the political machinations of the Central Powers as Generalissimo Foch directs the military forces.

It is plain that this nation, through its officials, looks to an international organization as the forerunner of Woodrow Wilson's league of nations for lasting peace, and want to make sure that the United States, whose unselfish purpose in the war is so apparent, furnishes the political leader who is to act as generalissimo of the civil governments. In a word they believe that Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, should be the political leader if one is named. There is no doubt that this view will meet with the hearty approbation of the allied governments.

FIRST ARREST IN ROW OVER BAY STATE FARE

The first arrest in an argument over the new Bay State fare system came in Lynn today. Philip Langelier, nineteen years, of Cleveland street, Lynn, was taken into custody on a charge of assaulting Thomas C. Galvin, conductor of a Lakeside-West Lynn trolley car.

According to Galvin's story, Langelier insisted in getting a transfer on a "city ticket." At Central square, the fare limit, Langelier, the police say, grappled with the conductor. The conductor and passenger fell from the car to the street.

MOTHER SEEKS NEWS OF MISSING DAUGHTER

Since March 2, Miss Belle Darcy, the twenty-five-year-old daughter of Mrs. Anna Darcy, of No. 41 Armandine street, Dorchester, has been missing from her home, and now, having exhausted all other sources of information, the anxious mother turns to the Boston AMERICAN for help in locating the girl.

Miss Darcy had been ill for some time, according to her mother, and had almost nothing to do with any of her friends for two years, depending almost entirely on her mother and sisters for society. She ostensibly went for a walk on the day she was last seen.

She wore a dark blue suit, white corderoy hat with a black brim, trimmed with a band of black and white fur and carried a sable fox muff. She was about five feet, five inches in height, with fair, curly hair, blue eyes and a light complexion.

TIMETABLES ADD TO HIGH COST TRAVEL

Once They Were Free, but Now They're a Penny Apiece; Another Lesson in 'Thrift'

H. C. L. has lately been crowded out of the limelight by H. C. T. (High Cost of Traveling). Timetables are going up. Only a penny, they say, so don't plan to give up your summer vacation on that account. If you can keep a stiff upper lip when railroad fares jump 60 per cent. and higher, and Pullman rates over 100 per cent., you can dig down for the additional copper. It's all in the day's work.

The idea is to prevent waste. Many persons get a timetable to look up just one train, and then throw said timetable away. The big folders contain about four cents apiece to issue, so they have to be very carefully prepared and edited. Instead of inquiring about trains at the information window, people ask for a timetable, which they have no further use for when their question is answered.

The railroads stood this waste, but Uncle Sam won't. He figures that if everyone who gets a timetable pays the nominal price of a penny for it, he will be more likely to keep it for future reference.

DECLARE EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA POOR PROPHET

By International News Service

London, June 24.—Emperor Karl of Austria-Hungary is a poor prophet, according to the Daily Express correspondent at Geneva. He tells of a Swiss paper's correspondent describing the emperor's visit to the front as follows:

"I saw him standing at the frontier talking across the river to a Swiss postmaster.

"'I predict,' said the Emperor, 'the early end of the war. The allies cannot stand under the blows on the Italian and French fronts any longer.'"

COMMENDS AMERICAN FOR AIDING TEACHERS

Miss Mabel Anderson, of the Boston Teachers' Club, writes to the AMERICAN, commending its work in the interest of the teachers of Boston during the past year.

"You not only helped us get our increase, but you kept us warm in the winter, and you are always a very present help in time of trouble," she writes, in expressing the thanks of the club for the co-operation of the AMERICAN.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. —Advertisement.

Pretty Curls and Waves Acquired Over Night!

Here's a hair curling secret that is decidedly fascinating. If you'll carefully apply a little liquid silmerine with a clean tooth brush, drawing it down the hair from root to tip, in the morning when you took in your mirror you will be astonished and delighted to find your hair has dried in as beautiful curls as you've ever worn. The waviness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because it also serves as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous. After one trial you will never go back to the barbarous curling iron.—Advertisement.

FORTIFICATION BILL PASSED IN RECORD TIME

Huge Appropriation Pushed Through House in Less Than Three Hours of Debate

By JAMES R. NOURSE,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Washington, June 25.—The House established a new record for legislative speed by passing the $5,425,-994,224 fortifications bill in less than three hours of debate. A calculation made by Representative Foss of Illinois showed that this was at the rate of $1,800,000,000 an hour.

The plans of General Pershing for taking part in a great Allied offensive were given to the House by Representative Borland of Missouri, chairman of the committee, during the debate. He said:

"Our field artillery program contemplates the raising and equipping of three new armies, each consisting of 1,575,000 men, an aggregate of 4,125,-000 men, of which at least 2,000,000 should be combatant and not to exceed 375,000 out of each army to be the necessary non-combatant forces to keep the line of communication. Each army is divided into five corps and each corps into six divisions, making thirty divisions to the army. Of these divisions, four are combatant, one replacement and one training.

"The committee had before it a careful estimate framed by General Pershing after the most accurate observation of the needs of the army in France and the experience of the Allies, approved by the General Staff and the War Department of this country, embracing a program of field artillery for each division, corps and army.

"The information necessarily is not printable, but I may say the program of field artillery is more complete, more varied and stronger in every line than any field artillery program with which any existing army has been equipped, including the German army itself."

At this point Borland was interrupted by McKenzie of Illinois, who asked:

"I presume the purpose of sending over these heavy guns and the manufacture of others at this time is to use them when the Allies take the offensive?"

"My opinion agrees with that of the gentleman from Illinois," Borland replied.

KEITH'S BILL IS FULL OF NOVELTIES

A most interesting and entertaining bill was presented at Keith's last night. The headliner for the week, Irene Franklin, the clever American comedienne, assisted by Burton Green, pianist, was well received by the large audience. Music, satire and comedy held the interest of the audience throughout the evening. Miss Franklin sang new songs in her usual pleasing way, and while the charming star was changing her stunning gowns the audience was treated to clever piano playing by Burton Green.

Miss Franklin and Mr. Green have been selected by the "Over There Theatrical League" to go across to entertain the soldiers in France, during their performance. Miss Franklin introduced the songs she will sing to the boys "over there," and she was obliged to respond to many encores.

A very pleasing act entitled "Rubeville" pleased the audience. A nautical laugh entitled "Motor Boating" portrayed the art and that portion of it that relates to musical comedy, featuring Tommy McRae, so was ably supported by a clever cast.

John Dunsmure, the smiling Scot, in a repertoire of whistling and original songs and stories, gave a very clever performance and his original way of singing proved a constant delight.

Homer Dickenson and Grace Deagon in songs; Patton and Marks, in a singing and dancing act; Jimmy Lucas and company, and Chinko and company were the remaining acts of the bill.

GLOBE THEATRE—The William Fox photo-spectacle, "A Daughter of the Gods," with Annette Kellermann as the fabled child of the sea, who moves through stirring adventures in a mythical kingdom, is shown at the Globe this week. Through it all she gives varied exhibitions of her phenomenal aquatic gifts and diving abilities, pictured in the most beautiful surroundings. That the drawing power of this photoplay remains potent was evidenced by the big crowd of yesterday. Douglas Fairbanks was shown in his story of a multiplicity of adventures, humorous and exciting. "Double Trouble," and Charlie Chaplin was shown in his heterogeneous humors of "The Pawn Shop."

COLUMBIA THEATRE—A well composed photoplay bill was offered at Loew's Columbia Theatre yesterday. William S. Hart in one of his most popular photoplays, "The Primal Lure," was shown. This is a most vigorous story, in which he is seen as the man of primitive instincts. The companion photoplay was "Believe Me, Xantippe," in which Wallace Reid is pictured as the young club man who is the central figure of this screening of Frederick Ballard's play, which won the Harvard prize given by John Craig and played for a long engagement at the Castle Square. There is also shown short comedies and news pictures.

MODERN AND BEACON THEATRE is a—Comedy reigns on the bill at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week. The pair of first run photoplays included Douglas Fairbanks in "Say, Young Fellow," in which he is pictured as a "cub" reporter on a small city daily. As may be suspected, he does stunts which the average newspaper reporter might well envy. He interviews a millionaire who has never been interviewed before, and he unearths a fraudulent scheme in the building of a factory which is run by a political boss. In accomplishment of these journalistic triumphs the Fairbanksian athletic stunts are continually in evidence, including vaulting, scaling the front of a building, fist battles and the like. It is unnecessary to say that there is not a dull moment in the picture. The other photoplay was "The Venus Model," picturing Mabel Normand as a working girl in a bathing suit factory.

PARK THEATRE—Crowded houses at every performance yesterday at the Park Theatre showed the popularity of the beautiful star, Theda Bara, in her latest Fox production, "Under the Yoke," a six-act incomparable feature which shows the Marines in action. Besides depicting the splendor of the tropics, the picture gives a thrilling story of the love of an American army officer for the beautiful daughter of a wealthy Spanish grandee. The Christie Comedy provides some excellent laughs, and the Pathe Weekly held its usual newsie items of Boston and vicinity. The popular soloist, Nan Hopestill, late of "The Follies," gave vocal selections, and the Park Symphony Orchestra rendered carefully selected music.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—Willie Solar, with songs and comicalities individual with himself and of such distinction that every appearance finds him enthusiastically welcomed, topped the bill at Loew's St. James Theatre yesterday. His welcome was not exceptional in the general acclaim accorded him, and he gave his customary satisfaction. Another big act was that of the Texarette de Luxe, in singing, dancing and instrumental specialties. The balance of the bill included Pedrini's Simians in a skit, "Fun on a Battleship"; Harmon & O'Connor, a pair of excellent singers and comedians in a refreshingly funny offering, and Lockhardt & Laddie in acrobatic specialties.

COPLEY THEATRE—Every moment of the mirthful performance of "A Night Off" was enjoyed by a large audience which saw the Henry Jewett Players act that delightful farce at the Copley Theatre last evening. This is its second and last week, and the few further opportunities to witness it will result in crowded houses for the remainder of its run.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE—Excellent vaudeville acts and photoplays marked the offerings at the Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester, yesterday. It was well balanced in point of variety and apparently pleased the large audience commendably. Prominent on the vaudeville bill were Weston & Young, titled "The Farcical Funsters," and judging by the laughs won they wear the title well; George Reeves in black face comicalities, Jillian's dogs, highly trained canines. On the screen there were shown the latest pictures, a comedy and the photoplay, "Uneasy Money," picturing Taylor Holmes.

Plays That Remain

Wilbur Theatre—Frances White, William Rock and their 28th band moved over to the Wilbur from the Plymouth last night, and appeared to carry their popularity with them. The show went very big.

Tremont Theatre—This is the last week of Mitzi in "Head Over Heels," and George Reeves in black face comicalities, Jillian's dogs, highly trained canines. On the screen there were shown the latest pictures, a comedy and the photoplay, "Uneasy Money," picturing Taylor Holmes.

ORPHEUM HAS ATTRACTIVE STAR BILL

The vaudeville bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday was of the all-star variety, the majority of the acts being of sufficiently big calibre to head any program. Standing out in major prominence was the act of Corcoran & Mack, whose humors are of such a pure stamp that they had their auditors in merry mood from start to finish.

The one-act play, "Could This Happen?" was an unusual dramatic offering presenting a problem in incident that was decidedly novel, and in other guise than so capably presented by the company of players seen, might deserve the interrogating title. It was an exciting drama in condensed form.

Another novel and attention-commanding act was that of "The Skating Bear," a highly-trained brute of uncanny dexterity in performing evolutions on roller skates as well as other stunts.

Other acts shown were Grindell and Esther, comedy and songs; Thomas and Richardson, in dances, and Rodero, a gifted violinist whose selections met with popular favor. In the scenic there were shown the latest News Pictorial, Charlie Chaplin in "The Pawn Shop" and Enid Bennett in "A Desert Wooing."

NORUMBEGA PARK—Last night at Norumbega Park Joan Quest scored a distinct success in "Marrying Money," a play full of the punch from start to finish. The interesting story is that of a young girl who is being forced into a rich marriage by her scheming mother. These fair nights bring the lovers of canoeing out to Norumbega in force, where the water is not troubled by more than a ripple now and then, and where submarines are unknown.

LANCASTER THEATRE—Another generous bill of photoplays was shown at the Lancaster Theatre yesterday. In the William Fox production, "The Fire Brand," Virginia Pearson is pictured as the leading figure in this story of events attendant upon late Russian revolution. In "The Trail to Yesterday" Bert Lytell is pictured in the principal role, and as an added attraction there was shown Louise Glaum in "Golden Rule Kate." The bill for the last half will include Norma Talmadge in "By Right of Purchase."

OH! THAT AWFUL BACKACHE IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

An unhealthy heart and the unhappiness and misery which follow, may be prevented by ordinary judgment and care. Keep your stomach and kidneys in shape and you will have good health. The kidneys' work is to throw off the poisonous matters which enter the body. If they perform this work regularly and automatically the other organs will take care of themselves.

Diseased conditions of the bladder or kidneys are indicated by nervousness, sleeplessness, that tired, worn-out feeling, dizziness, nausea, backache, lumbago, rheumatism, pain in the lower abdomen, many so-called "female troubles," severe pain and discomfort when urinating, bloody, cloudy and stringy urine, too frequent or suppressed passages. All these are symptoms which tell you of diseased kidneys or bladder, which may lead to Bright's Disease or Death.

Don't wait until the danger is upon you, but write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., for a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They are the world famous original, imported Haarlem Oil, the kind your great-grandfather used. These capsules each day will keep you toned up and feeling fine. Sworn Statement of the Composition of the Formula of Nuxated Iron

How it helps to increase strength and build up delicate, nervous, run-down folks.

The Board of Directors have authorized the broadest publication of the sworn statement of the composition of the formula of Nuxated Iron so that the public may examine it for themselves and judge as to its merits. It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over three million people annually. Among those who have used and strongly endorsed it are many physicians who have been connected with the best hospitals and medical societies, the late M. Shaw, Former Presidential Cabinet Official; Hon. Wm. Gibbs McAdoo, Vice Presidential Nominee Chas A. Towne, Former member of Congress; distinguished U. S. Army Generals (Retired), Judge Alphonso Hart, late Associate Justice Court of Claims at Washington and former Health Commissioner Kerr of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this sworn statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians keep a record of it and refer to it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer any inquiries concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of this sworn statement will be sent to any one who desires such. It is as follows:—

Each dose of the above form of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic Iron in the form of Iron Peptonate of the special specific standard, which in our opinion possesses superior virtues to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate you would have to put the same quantity of actual Iron in the tablet or dose that this contains for you to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same result at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we would have omitted the most costly though their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increases brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, the important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphate) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons, is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron" by the Dao Health Laboratories, Perry, London, and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron with little success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you. We guarantee satisfaction to every purchaser or your money will be refunded.

Take Nuxated Iron for Red Blood, Strength and Endurance

In regard to the value of Nuxated Iron, Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says: It has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for putting red blood, building up the nerves and strengthening the muscles. Dr. J. W. Armistead, Grove Hill, Alabama, graduate of the University of Alabama School of Medicine, Mobile, 1858, says: "In the cases I used Nuxated Iron I have found more beneficial results than from any preparation I have ever used in 34 years' practice." Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "Certainly no general organic weakness of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough iron in your food, but your blood is not of the right kind. If you feel tired in the morning, restless at night; if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality, go to your family doctor and have him take a specimen of your blood and examine it, and if it shows iron deficiency, get him to give you a reliable organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Do this so as to be sure that you do not get hold of some of the numerous forms of metallic iron preparations on the market which may do you more harm than good. Or if you do not want to go to the trouble to purchase an original package of Nuxated Iron and feel sure that you are getting Nuxated Iron (spread on the package—Not Nux and Iron or Iron and Nux) get a bottle of Iron than Nuxated Iron."

Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it no matter how much you eat or what you eat your food merely passes through you and you get no nourishment and as a consequence we become weak, pale, sickly looking creatures, plainly in need deficient in iron. If you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of nursing mothers and children within two weeks' time. Sold by all druggists everywhere.

CHIEFS AT ODDS ON 'BONE DRY' AMENDMENT

Burleson and Hurley Opposed to Policy; Daniels Strongly for It

By International News Service.

Washington, June 25.—The administration split open today on the prohibition question and each Congress divided counsel on the Jones "bone dry" amendment.

Postmaster-General Burleson joined forces with Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, in urging the defeat of the amendment, while Secretary of the Navy Daniels, in the most emphatic language, testified to the excellent effect of prohibition in the navy and the navy shipyards.

"Don't experiment with a nation's destiny—don't take any chances," was Mr. Hurley's advice.

"This is no time to have patience with fanatics—we must get down to hard cases," said Postmaster General Burleson.

"Liquor never promoted efficiency any where," was Secretary Daniels' statement.

Bainbridge Colby, member of the shipping board, recalled to the stand, reiterated his statement of last week to the effect that prohibition would cripple the shipping program.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, voiced the protest of the working men against the enactment of bone dry prohibition.

621,011 PLEDGE IN WAR STAMP DRIVE

Entire State Aroused and Pushing on Toward the One Million Mark

The June drive for a million pledges to buy War Savings Stamps regularly is gaining strong headway throughout the State. Dukes County, comprising the towns of Martha's Vineyard, gets the honor of being the first in the State to exceed its quota of pledges, today reporting 1,140, or 4 per cent. over allotment. Dukes already held the flag for the county, which had the largest per capita purchase of stamps before the June drive began, so that it has secured twin distinctions in this War Savings loan.

Reports compiled at headquarters and all parts of the State show 621,011 pledges secured or promised, the figures being based on actual reports from some sections and careful estimates from others.

Eleven more towns reported going over the top today. They are Weston, Edgartown, Greenfield, Hamilton, Littleton, Montgomery, North Andover, Burlington, Townsend and Gill.

Other towns represented in the returns are:

His order was for three $1,000 war savings stamps, one each to be given his three children, Lydia, Mary and Alvan T. Jr. Congressman Fuller subscribed $1,000,000 to the first Liberty Loan and has taken a big block of bonds of the other two loans.

French War Cripples Work Wonders, Says Mabel Sturgis

Miss Mabel Sturgis, of No. 83 Beacon street and Manchester-by-the-Sea, one of the best known social and charitable workers in the city, has consented to tell through the AMERICAN some of her observations and experiences while aiding French refugees.

Miss Sturgis, one of the Codman family, known for her philanthropic work in connection with the Church of the Advent, has recently returned from France where she spent a year and one-half working for the Refugee Department of the Red Cross Civil Affairs Bureau.

She was associated with Miss Margaret Curtis, of Boston and Manchester-by-the-Sea, the well-known social worker and former woman golf champion, and Miss Helen Frick, of Pride's Crossing, daughter of Henry Clay Frick, the steel magnate and financier of New York and Pittsburgh.

All women interesting to respond to the appeal of the Red Cross endorsed by Secretaries Daniels and Baker for workers among the refugees and all those interested in the story of the French refugees themselves will find Miss Sturgis' articles of intense interest and value.

Yesterday, in the first installment of her narrative, Miss Sturgis told how refugees, fleeing from the German advance or sent home from Germany through Switzerland, arrive at Evian, France, and are taken to the Casino to receive assistance for their immediate needs. The Casino is the headquarters for mail for such refugees, and if any awaits them it is promptly distributed.

Those refugees who are well go to work. Housing must be provided for all, and hospital treatment for the sick. Her story continues today.

By MARIE DUNBAR.

"The housing problem," said Miss Sturgis, was one of the difficult propositions. In Paris there were a large number of buildings which were under construction at the time of the war. Miss Curtis obtained a list of these buildings from the police, and then the Red Cross completed those which were nearly finished. Conditions have been greatly improved and such a condition as where many people are living in a room or two has been eliminated.

"The French people, as you must know, are home loving. They love to own things. The refugee bureau worked out a plan whereby furniture could be purchased on the installment plan."

Miss Sturgis then described the joy with which the French received this plan whereby they could really own something, really have something with which to re-establish their homes, and which they could keep after the war.

The furniture is purchased by the Red Cross and the payments arranged.

INSTALLMENT PLANS SPREADS.

"Just this simple plan," says Miss disheartened people courage. The installment plan has spread from Sturgis, "has done much to give these Paris all over France and practically every refugee's home is furnished in this manner. The furniture is hard to obtain because of the scarcity of labor.

Miss Sturgis then told of a visit to a farm in France where the mutilated are working. Hasn't every American a pathetic picture in one corner of his mind of the hopeless blind person, the brave hero who has lost his arm or leg or perhaps both?

They wonder that these human wrecks have the courage to live. But listen to this story and at once you will feel that these men are not looked on as burdens but are made to feel, and really are, useful.

"It was wonderful to see what they are accomplishing in the way of trade," said Miss Sturgis. "Almost everyone has heard of the miracles that the wounded and incapacitated have accomplished. The same wonders are being accomplished on the farms.

"The mutilated are cared for by the army of Civil Affairs. Miss Grace Harper, formerly head of the department of the handicapped at the Massachusetts General Hospital, is handling the work which the mutilated are doing on the farms. Those who return from the front and can no longer fight are not objects of pity.

"The farm I visited was headed by a well-known professor who had headed agricultural colleges in the West. The theory that the French work on is not that the farmer should be able to do just one thing but everything. One of the men was hoeing. He did not wear a false arm to replace the one which he had lost in battle.

"His arm was off a little below the shoulder. An iron fixture was attached to his arm. To the lower part of the fixture was screwed the handle of the hoe. This enabled the man to hoe as rapidly and speedily as if he had two arms. Numerous clever devices similar to this are used by the French."

(To be continued.)

SOMERVILLE MAN AT AYER GIVEN TEN YEARS

Heavy Prison Sentence for Absence Without Leave; 2 Years for South Boston Soldier

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, June 25.—Private William C. Carten of Washington street, Somerville, a member of Battery D, 301st Field Artillery, has been sentenced to ten years at hard labor and to be dishonorably discharged from the service of the United States at the end of that time.

Carten was court-martialed for being absent without leave and twice failing to return to his company at the command of a superior officer. The approved verdict of the court martial was published today and Carten will serve his sentence in the Atlantic branch of the United States Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Jay, N. Y.

According to the testimony at the trial Carten disappeared from the cantonment on May 24 and was gone until June 2. On May 27 Carten was told to return to the cantonment by Lieut. George Dowd of the 301st Artillery, but did not comply with the command. He was again told to come back to the cantonment by Sergeant James Lynch of the same company on May 29, and when he failed to obey the second command he was arrested.

This is the heaviest sentence yet imposed upon an "A. W. O. L." at this cantonment.

Private Robert E. Maynard of Ellery terrace, South Boston, a member of the Machine Gun Company of the 301st Infantry Regiment, who was convicted of attempting to defraud the government by claiming an allowance for a woman he said was his wife, but to whom he was not married, was sentenced to five years at hard labor at Fort Jay, N. Y.

This sentence was later reduced to two years by the reviewing authorities according to the finding of the court-martial which was also published today.

Maynard's sentence also carries with it a dishonorable discharge from the service when his prison term is completed.

TROCO

The Successor to Butter

Made from the White Meat of Coconuts

Churned with Pasteurized Milk

Insist on Troco

If You Enjoy Good Butter

WHEN you give your order for Troco ask for it by name—not simply for "nut butter" or "nut margarine." For the flavor of Troco is achieved by an exclusive process, which gives the true creamery butter flavor. Other products can't give you Troco quality.

Troco is made by an exclusive process from vegetable fat—the dainty fat extracted from the white meat of coconuts, which is churned with pasteurized milk.

It is the national successor to butter—the gilt edged creamery kind. For only the finest butter made has the pure sweet flavor of Troco.

Like butter, Troco is energy food of the highest value, equally digestible and easily assimilated. And being the de luxe product for table use it naturally takes first place for cooking.

And remember—Troco contains no animal oils of any kind whatsoever, nor any preservatives.

Troco is made only from rich vegetable fats and pasteurized milk by a company which makes no animal oil products. Old laws, made before Troco was invented, require the name "oleomargarine" on the label.

Your dealer can get Troco for you on short notice — we fill orders promptly. Insist on Troco if you enjoy fine butter — it solves your butter problems. Your dealer will give you a capsule of the same vegetable coloring butter makers use.

When a rug varies a few inches from a standard size?

Nothing in Quality—Every Rug in This Sale Is Perfect.

But a Whole Lot of Difference in the Much Lowered Prices

This Week We Offer While They Last--

Famous Crex Grass Rugs

At Big Price Concessions

It's a trade custom not to pay regular prices for any irregularity, however unimportant, such as when a rug, otherwise perfect, leaves the loom measuring a few inches over or under the regular sizes. For several years we have secured these Crex "irregulars"—and they make up one of the most popular floor covering sales we hold.

CHILDREN ARE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER WAR STAMP LETTER CONTEST

Aptly Adorned Epistles Add to Interest of Great Campaign to Help Uncle Sam

Six letters from pupils of the Tucker School, Milton, shone in rays of brightness and a patriotic thrill to the War Stamp letter editor; for each one bore drawings of the flags of the Allies and a reproduction of the United States shield, all in colors. There were the red, yellow and black of Belgium; the gallant tricolor of France; the "Union Jack" of Great Britain; the bars and shield of Italy, and our own beloved red, white and blue.

They were excellently done, and although some of the letters did not comply with the rules because they were written on both sides of the paper, the editor is going to give the names of the six pupils who did them: Arthur Karis, 12 years old, No. 8 Tucker street, Mattapan; Parker Slater, 11 years, No. 80 Houghton avenue; Helen Cameron, 11 years, No. 12 Belvoir road, Mattapan; Hazel Slader, 10 years, No. 93 Blue Hills Parkway, Mattapan; Gustave Roubound, 11 years, No. 40 Warren avenue, Milton, and Mary McGrath, 12 years, No. 17 Tucker street, Milton.

The letters are all signed by the teacher, Miss Elsie M. Kelley.

Another good letter is from a Connecticut girl who earned her money by making "war wads." Do you know what a "war wad" is? Read her letter. Her name is Marion Soule Butterfield, and she is eleven years old.

How could I earn edough to buy a War Savings Stamp? Mr. Hoover advised saving sugar, fat, and meat. I thought that by selling rolls I could save all three of those things and buy a War Stamp as well. Making the first batch was exciting. It was fun to see how bread the first time I peddled the rolls and got more orders. By working hard after school I soon had a War Savings Stamp all paid for. This was not an easy task, for on day I lost almost a dozen by falling down. But sold enough for a War Stamp.

Colchester, Conn.

Here are some other letters from boys and girls contesting for the weekly prize:

PARKER SLATER, Eleven Years—Would you like to know how I earned my money for War Savings Stamps? I went to the store and worked in the greenhouse and worked in the garden and worked in the house. I got one War Savings Stamp and I am going to get three more. I am working now to get more. I am trying to fill my book so it will help heat Germany.

Tucker School, Milton.

HELEN CAMERON, 11 years—I began to get Thrift Stamps in April. The way I earned my money was to go on errands for the lady downstairs. I also got some money for helping with the dishes and beds and setting the table and other little turns around the house. I earned some money on saving all my dimes up in a register bank for some time. I now have four Thrift Stamps, but I have made a pledge to get a War Savings Stamp.

Tucker School, Milton.

IRENE J. N. MURRAY, eight years—Mama gives me five cents a day and Daddy gives me 25 cents a week, and so earn this money I must be polite and ladylike. I have four War Savings Stamps and am going to get another today. I have a Liberty Bond and am a member of the Red Cross.

373 Massachusetts avenue, Boston.

HERMAN BISHOP, ten years—I have earned four War Savings Stamps and have pledged another before Christmas, so I've to hustle this Summer. I help a boy with his paper route. It's no easy job when one has to go through those storms we had last Winter, shoveling paths, and got two cents for every 100 to school work. I sold five boxes of strawberries. Have just got a job helping a man with his having, a quarter a day. I harvest war gardens and will sell some vegetables from it.

Edward B. Nevin School, South Weymouth.

ALAN PICKENS, 12 Years—I have a small strawberry bed, and I sell berries to the neighbors at 22 cents a box. I also deliver people's papers to them on Sunday and I earn a few cents that way. In these ways I have earned one War Savings Stamp and have got most a dollar saved on the rest.

Acton Centre Grammar School.

BENJAMIN E. LASKEY, 12 Years—My mother and father give me 50 cents each week to buy Thrift Stamps. I earn the money by helping with the housework and doing errands and being a good girl. I have four War Savings Stamps, and am helping to win the war.

Central Congregational Church School, Chelsea.

JURY VISITS SCENE OF CHILD TRAGEDY

Worcester, June 25. — The actual trial of Patrick Sullivan of Clinton, on the charge of murdering six-year-old Stella Soldi in that town, began today before Judge Philip J. O'Connell. The jury was selected yesterday, after eighty-five of a venire of 124 had been examined. Of the venire, thirty-two men were excused by the court, twenty-one were challenged by the defense and twenty by the government. The jury was taken for a view of the scene where the little girl was found dead on the evening of April 5. The place is a secluded spot in Clinton. She had not returned from school, and her parents, becoming alarmed, notified the police. Some days later Sullivan was arresting in Meriden.

RAILWAY AND POSTAL MEN IN HUNGARY STRIKE

London, June 25.—Railway, postal and telephone services are now in operation as the general strike in Hungary, the Geneva correspondent of the Daily News today telegraphed his paper. The Halmed Newsletter Journal interprets the walk-out as having a political significance, for the suffrage bill was presented to the Hungarian parliament today and a five-day strike has been ordered.

LABOR SCARCITY LOWERS LUMBER YIELD IN U. S.

Washington, June 25.—The lumber cut in the United States during 1917 totaled 35,821,239,000 feet, approximately 10 per cent. less than the production for 1916, the forest service announced today. Scarcity of labor and largely decreased private building operations are responsible for the decrease, it was said. The State of Washington was the largest producer for the year, with a cut of 4,570,000,000; Louisiana second with 4,210,000,000 feet, and Oregon third, with 2,555,000,000.

DEATH IN WAKE OF MISSOURI CYCLONE

NAME NEHF TO DOWN GIANTS

Braves Confident of Taking a Fall Out of McGraw's Team Today

By NICK FLATLEY.

To Arthur Nehf, one of the best southpaws under the big tent, fell today the task of trying to chase the jinx the Giants have pinned on the Braves this season. Our Allston heroes have yet to take a game from the McGraw mob, but according to all hands this is the day.

When right Nehf can stop the best of them, and Arthur is what they call right at present. Then, too, a rookie pitcher in the person of Causey was slated to represent the New York interests. This youth did score a shutout against Brooklyn recently, but then everybody does that nowadays.

Little Richard Rudolph continues to pitch no-run, victory ball for the Braves, but there's a defeat attached to his record just the same.

It arrived with the Giants and the count was 3-0. While the Little Master was pitching good ball, so, too, was Albert Demaree, lantern-jawed caricaturist.

He held the Stallings contenders to four little hits and was harder to find than a seat on one of the beach ferries. The Braves never did have a chance with him, while the baldfaced Richard was found now and then.

Had not Arthur Wilson made a late and bad chuck in the second, those Giants never would have collected their first run. And if Edward Konetchy had not been blinded by the genial June afternoon sun, the two more in the ninth would not have been. But it's history now and the Braves at all events proved they need ask no favor of the draft-shattered Giants.

ITALY ADOPTS BASEBALL AND FOOTBALL

One of the curious effects of the war is the international interest which has been aroused in American sports.

Italy is the latest nation to adopt baseball. According to Dr. Felice Ferrero, Director of the Italian Bureau of Information in this city, football, as played in America, as well as the national game of this country, has taken hold of the populace in Italy.

The Gazzetta dello Sport, one of the most influential sport journals of that country, is raising a fund for the purchase of baseballs, bats and footballs and the distribution of prizes among the soldiers to stimulate competition.

General Pennella, commander of the Second Italian army, in a letter to the Gazetta dello Sport, says that football and baseball games are of inestimable value in the training for war.

He praises the initiative of the Gazetta dello Sport, and says that he firmly believes that the stimulation of baseball and football competition among the various units of the Italian army will have the most gratifying and important results in maintaining the morale of the troops.

General Pennella is especially pleased with baseball as an aid to the training and to the maintenance of the morale of the troops.

"I look upon this form of sport," he says, "as an integral part of military training. Solace and diversion are especially necessary in trench warfare.

"During the inevitable lulls in this kind of warfare the morale of the men is likely to suffer, and they need the kind of recreation that will chase army gloom and stimulate the spirit.

"Sports and games take out of a man the morale and physical kinks contracted in the trenches. I consider it a matter of vital importance to the nation that this interest be stimulated, not only in the army but also among the civilian population."

McGOVERN POUNDED AT WILL BY YOUNG BRITT

Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford gave Young Terry McGovern, Philadelphia lightweight, a boxing lesson in the twelve-round final at the Douglas A. C., Chelsea. Britt's left jab kept the Quaker City boy at a distance whenever he established a lead, while in the infighting Frankie scored three blows to every one that took.

Charley Mitchell and Robby Dyson went ten fast rounds to a draw. Young Leonard earned the decision over Steve Roberts in the curtain-raiser.

PHIL INFIELDER GOES TO GET IN BIG SHOW

Philadelphia, June 25.—Second-baseman McGaffigan of the Phillies, has left to don the khaki and get in the big game. Pearce, a local semi-pro, got two hits and played a fast fielding game in McGaffigan's old position, while the locals were beating Brooklyn, 7-1.

SUTER EASY WINNER OF LONG RACE AT REVERE

Paul Suter won the 25-mile motor-paced race at the Revere saucer, finishing half a lap in front of Frank Corri, with Clarence Carman a poor third. Carman led until the fifteenth mile when Suter sprinted to the fore. Once in command, the Swede was never headed.

GANDIL IS ORDERED TO APPEAR BEFORE BOARD

Chicago, June 25.—Chick Gandil, White Sox first baseman, has been notified to appear before his draft board for reclassification. Gandil has a very bad knee and South Side fans do not expect him to be called.

Corbett's Corner

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

A man will devote many hours of labor and part of his income to keeping his auto in superb condition; a youngster guards carefully the mechanism of his bike or some particular toy which is his. But I dare say that not one in every hundred in such a group gives any real thought to keeping his body—the most marvelous piece of machinery in the world—in first-class working order.

If a bolt comes loose in a man's auto, if a cog shifts out of place or there is a rattle under the hood or the body of the car, the owner gets busy at once and fixes it.

He realizes that such a trifling fault, if permitted to exist, may in a short time put the entire car out of commission.

But if that same man, who is so careful of his automobile, finds that there is a slight disorder within the body, does he get busy at once in his efforts to locate the fault—and then does he take measures to remedy it? Oh, no.

"I've got a little trouble right now," he will tell you, "but I'll be all right in a little while."

So he permits the disorder to exist, the trouble becomes chronic, the entire mechanism of the body is affected—and soon that man is a physical wreck.

Machinery, if properly cared for, would continue in fine condition through its guaranteed lifetime. On rare occasions a trifling disorder may come in the workings of that machinery.

The man who owns it can correct it permanently by getting at it before the disorder spreads. If neglected, it affects the entire car and the man must send it to an expert to be repaired.

CARE OF MACHINERY.

The expert charges him a big fee. Sometimes, if the machine has been neglected too long the trouble has communicated itself to all parts of the car, even the expert is powerless to cure it. And so the machine must go to the automobile graveyard.

So it is with the human body. If a mere guards its health carefully, disease cannot come to him and he is assured of a long and happy life.

But if he neglects the slight, minor ailments will come. If taken care of at once they can be corrected. If neglected, the illness spreads to other parts of the body.

An expert physician must be called in then and his fees are large. Sometimes even the most eminent man is powerless to aid if the disordered body has been neglected too long. And its owner is doomed to an early grave.

FRESH AIR AS CURE-ALL.

For more than a quarter of a century I have preached the doctrins of fresh air, sunshine and exercising. The man who indulges freely in each of these rarely knows a sick day.

Fresh air supplies his blood with the needed oxygen and helps to keep it pure; sunshine is nature's own tonic and exercising is the vital need for the upkeep of health and strength.

It is the common fault to neglect to exercise. As a result, the interior of the stomach muscles become soft and flabby, and the stomach cannot do its digestive work properly.

Biliousness, indigestion, gas in the stomach and similar ailments follow.

If the muscles of the heart do not get the proper exercise the heart must suffer. And so it is with the lungs. If the arm and leg muscles are not exercised properly they lack endurance and power.

And so, once again I preach—seek the sunshine, breathe in deeply of fresh air, and exercise daily under intelligent direction if you wish to be healthy and live to a ripe old age.

Leonard-Britton in Six-Round Go Tonight

Philadelphia, June 25.—It is expected that Shibe Park will be filled to capacity when Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, and Jack Britton, the American welterweight title holder, climb into the ring tonight.

Local fistic fans have gone wild over the six-round battle and the advance sale has been tremendous.

Leonard rules a slight favorite. Although Britton, who will make 141 pounds ringside, probably will have about seven pounds on Leonard, the wise ons figure Benny's punch and stamina to more than offset the cleverness of the veteran welterweight.

Tonight's fight will be the second these lads have fought. They battled in New York last Winter, and Leonard won on points. The lightweight that night was not in tip top condition, still he won. He is right for this struggle, and his many friends here predict he will stop Britton this time.

KERRIGAN AND OUIMET LEAD IN GOLF TOURNEY

Thomas F. Kerrigan, former Dedham professional, now in the Navy, had the best card for the first 36 holes in the two-day amateur and professional open medal play tournament at the Brae-Burn Country Club. The scene shifted today to the Brookline Country Club.

The tournament is in aid of the Army and Navy Relief Fund. There were 144 entries, the fees alone netting $432.

Kerrigan, who played in his naval uniform, had a score of 152. He tied Tom McNamara, former State champion, with a 76 in the morning, and headed the field with a similar card in the afternoon.

Francis Ouimet was second with a 78 and a 75, and Louis Tellier, Brookline Country Club, followed with an 81 and a 77.

BIG LEAGUERS PREPARE TO SAVE GAME

By SAM CRANE.

Although the situation that professional baseball faces today is most serious, Secretary John A. Heydler of the National League, in an official statement raises hope that with the parent baseball organization and the American League will play out their schedules of championship games this season.

It will be necessary probably, though for the various clubs in the two leagues to secure the services of young amateur players so as to fill up the vacancies left by enlistments, selective drafts and enrollments for war work by so many of the star players who started the season.

Secretary Heydler also says very positively that despite handicaps caused thereby, the club owners of the National League are a unit in the opinion that there is no reason for cancelling or curtailing the schedules.

Now, while there will be many popular star players missing from their clubs besides those that have already joined the colors, promising youngsters will be developed.

While the loss of high class playing talent may detract temporarily from the great interest in the championship races, there is little doubt that the leagues will be benefited.

If the teams are more evenly matched than before, interest will be revived and maintained until the close of the season.

SPORT HIGHLY POPULAR.

A race is a race and a contest is a contest, and will always appeal to lovers of baseball.

That the baseball public is hungry for the game, and much more so than was generally expected in the Spring, has been convincingly demonstrated in this season in all the large cities of the country, by the big crowds that have attended the championship games of the major leagues.

It is proof that the sport is more popular than ever and is constantly growing in popularity. It is an amusement and pastime that is demanded.

That professional baseball players should have any preference in being exempted from the draft or shown any special privileges is absolutely unreasonable and was never claimed, expected or anticipated by the players themselves or those most prominently interested in the business end of the game.

There were no "slackers" among the club owners nor among the players. They have been foremost in "doing their bit." They appreciated their obligations to their country and none was more loyal and patriotic.

They have done much and are willing to do more—all they possibly can. Any demands made on them will be met, gladly and eagerly.

Baseball has done more for the country during these times of great stress, anxiety and doubt than possibly has been appreciated to the fullest extent.

It is not so much the financial aid that has been given the government that should be considered as the influence that the sport has had on the soldier and sailors who are now "over there" and those who are on the way to Europe.

Those heroes are all true blue Americans. They love baseball. It is their national game. They took to it naturally.

They could not help it, and when they are so placed that they cannot see it they want to hear about it.

Why, "over there" they are as hungry to get news of championship baseball games as they are for their chow.

TED LEWIS AND ROBSON CLASH AT TRIPLE A

Malden Battler Confident He Can Defeat Welterweight Champion Tonight

CARD AT ARMORY A. A.

Main event—Tommy Robson of Malden, vs. Ted (Kid) Lewis of London, 12 rounds.

Semi-final—Johnny Buckley of South Boston, vs. Charley Bergin of New Haven, Ct., 8 rounds.

Second preliminary—Johnny Gray of Chelsea, vs. Gerard Gianni of Lawrence, 8 rounds.

Curtain-raiser—Johnny Fall of Lawrence, vs. Al Thomas of Boston, 6 rounds.

Referee—Billy Roche of New York. Starting time—8:15 p. m.

By RINGSIDE.

Tommy Robson, Malden middleweight, has the opportunity of a lifetime to gain prominence in the Queensberry game when he faces Ted (Kid) Lewis of London, champion welterweight of the world, in the twelve-round feature affair at the Armory A. A. arena, tonight.

Lewis, one of the trickiest and cleverest men in the ring, will undoubtedly try and pick Tommy out at long range, a style of fighting the Malden boy has mastered to a science.

Robson's long suit is crowding his opponent, in order to get in close and mix matters. As opponents of this brand generally make an interesting scrap, there is every reason to believe the fans will see plenty of action.

"The local referees can sit down and watch the bout, as Lewis' personal referee, Billy Roche of New York, will be the third man in the ring.

Johnny Buckley, clever South Boston boy faces an unknown quantity, as far as local affairs is concerned, in Charley Bergin of New Haven, Ct.

Johnny Gray of Chelsea, and Gerard Gianni of Lawrence, will try to settle which is the better boxer in a six-round affair, while Johnny Fallon and Al Thomas will entertain in the curtain-raiser.

GOSSIP OF GLOVELAND

When Johnny Donovan and Larry Burns, both of South Boston, meet at the Commercial A. C. next night, the question of who has the right to claim the championship of South Boston will be decided. As each boxer has a large following, one of the best crowds of the season is expected at the popular West End boxing club.

Donovan at one time showed better promise than Burns, but the latter has since forged out in front in recent years. In his last contest he scored a knockout in the ninth round, coming through via the "K. O." route.

Burns is a fine boxer, as he proved on numerous occasions at local clubs, but Donovan's friends feel confident that "Nonie" will prove a little too much for the former Lawrence boy.

* * * * *

Walter Butler, who is out with a challenge to meet any man in New England at 142 pounds, promises to make it interesting for Jack Mealey at the Commercial next week.

* * * * *

Gerard Gianni will give Eddie Barrell a chance to even up matters. Gianni and Barrell met before, Gianni being a bit too husky for the quincy youth, but Barrell will have a little of the edge in the sturdy Utesi.

* * * * *

Charley Parker and Young Viera are announced for the Eastern Masters' shoot at the C. A. C. last Friday night, when Parker got the decision over Viera. However, Viera gained a lot of friends by his willingness to meet any man in his class and has been a fine chance of repeating last week's decision.

The Aggressive Mitten's League, by the way, will have its committee present to pass upon membership applications. Those now over the list of performers it is probable that the club will have a few more members after the show.

SOX MUST WIN TO KEEP IN FIRST PLACE

New York Yankees All Excited Over Prospects of Taking the Lead in League

New York, June 25.—It behooves the Red Sox to win today's game from the Yankees, at Brush Stadium. Otherwise, the Huggins entrant will go honk-honking into first place in this hectic American League race.

Smoky Joe Bush lost his smoke, control and everything else, in the ninth round of yesterday's pastime. Hence, an apparent Sox victory was turned into a sad defeat. The tally: 3-2.

Another win for the Yankees today and here's how the two teams will rank: Yankees, .556; Red Sox, .581.

All the excitement in yesterday's battle was crowded into the ninth chapter. Bush had a one-run lead when the resident artillery laced him. Pecklpaugh was first up and Smoky Joe passed him. Baker singled and Roger sauntered to third. Pratt elevated deep to Strunk and Pecklpaugh brought over the tying run.

Then Wallis Pipp cracked one and drove it far up into the right field pavilion, Baker ambling over with the tapo counter. Pipp only got credited with a double, as the game was officially over when J. Franklin tapped the saucer with his right hoof (or was it his left?).

"HORSEMEN" JAILED IN WORK OR FIGHT ORDER

Covington, Ky., June 25.—Six men, who registered as "horse trainers and horsemen," were arrested at Latonia race track and were fined $100 and costs and sentenced to sixty days at hard labor by Judge Lewis Manson in the Covington police court.

They had been charged with violation of the State law which requires every able bodied male from 16 to 60 years of age to work at least thirty-six hours a week. This is the maximum sentence as provided by the law.

Does Co-Education Pay?

A Problem of Boys and Girls

Beatrice Fairfax Asks If in the High School Stages It Is Responsible for the Making of Mollycoddle Youths

By Beatrice Fairfax

IS the co-educational high school responsible for the change in the relations of the sexes?

I ask the question in all humility; I don't know. Like the rest of the world, I am seeking light. We all know women do not act in the least as they did a generation ago; that they have become the pursuers rather than the pursued, and they are not the least reticent over their new role. On the contrary, they seem to enjoy it immensely.

One horn of the controversy tosses the revolution on the co-educational high school, and the other tosses it on Bernard Shaw and that terribly revealing play of his, "Man and Super-Man."

The most brilliant man of my acquaintance is strong for the co-educational high school. He says that unconsciously it teaches a boy tact, consideration for women, good manners, and deprives him of the innate savagery that claims him during those years.

He also says that the shame of appearing stupid before girls causes him to study and makes him a better scholar than he would if left entirely to the society of his own sex.

But the mothers who have boys in the high schools say something like: "We don't want our boys deprived of their wholesome savagery —it's the best thing in the world for them. We object seriously to having them turned into party-going, dancing men while they are still in school. It interferes with their lessons and it makes them 'sissies.'"

All Right in Lower Grades.

These mothers agree that co-education is the finest thing in the world in the lower grades, but in the high school it is a failure.

As one of them said to me: "There is too much 'co' and too little education as the result of putting young people in the same classroom at the most susceptible period of their lives. The case of the boys' mothers against the system is something like this:

"Girls are older than boys of the same age. And the high school girl of sixteen or seventeen is just budding into a very self-conscious young person. She has begun to take a keen interest in clothes, she wants to go to parties, she wants admiration, and lastly—though perhaps she is unconscious of this—she wants a victim on whom to try the fifty-seven varieties of cuteness that she has acquired.

"In normal circumstances she would try out her fascinations on older men whom she would meet through her brothers, or in her own home, and they would be better prepared to receive the arrows than the raw material on the other side of the classroom.

"But there they are, poor infants of scant age, and still hibernating in the wholesome savagery that nature supplies for the proper development of the male adolescent. They love athletics, they love tramping, and to go off into the woods and play at being a primitive man.

"And nothing could be better for boys than all of this cave business; it means that nature has taken them in hand and is applying her own methods to thicken their muscles, strengthen their bones, and generally toughen them up for the impending battle of life.

Amazons Take Them

"But there, in the classroom, is the enemy with the fifty-seven varieties of cuteness and ready, in the interest of a 'killing,' to try out any number of them.

"The young Amazon looks over the lot and selects her victim. Perhaps she does not think very much of him—she may regret that he is not taller, that his cheeks are so pudgy, that his hands are not clean, that he is always munching something out of a bag. But he is a boy—and have you ever watched a kitten play with a mouse?

"The campaign is opened, not in school, but at the boy's home, at least that is the way it happened to my boy," the mother continued. "Diana, we'll call her that, began calling up my son on the telephone. At first she wanted to know what the lessons for the next day were—she had left her paper in school.

"And it was amusing to see how bored Bob was. 'What's the matter with her and why don't she ask someone else about her lessons?' Then, after three or four inquiries of this sort, there was a change, the conversation ran:

"'That you, Bob; there's to be a little porch party at Florence Smith's tonight, there's going to be strawberry ice cream, and we're going to turn on the phonograph and dance, would you mind coming for me?'

"Now my poor cave-boy cared nothing about dancing or Diana, but he is a slave to ice cream, so he said he'd take her.

"He went as Diana's partner and there he met other cave-boys, and they stumbled over each other's feet and felt uncomfortable and awkward and the only bright spot in the whole evening was the ice cream. But after a while these bobbie-de-boys began to enjoy playing the game with the high school Amazons. It was another case of Pope's famous lines:

'Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.'

"My telephone is always jingling for Bob; they dance nearly every night, and if, they don't dance it's the movies. He no longer cares about tramping and athletics; he has become an authority on the onestep, he imagines he is an authority on girls, and he is an awful bore."

I repeated this conversation to the clever mother and said: "Nonsense! That woman doesn't know what she has to be grateful for. That poor little high school girl has taken her young lout and broken him in, pruned down his savagery and made him presentable. His mother has the natural jealousy of all mothers."

Then I reflected: But the clever man's sons are not old enough to go to high school; how will he feel when they are?

FROCKS FOR LESS THAN $2

By Rita Stuyvesant

THE world has gone quite gingham mad, and the craze of last Summer has extended to this season. Never before were there such pretty, trim little frocks as those seen this year in gingham, and so delightfully simple.

For the young girl or her mother nothing is so charming, yet so inexpensive for Summer days as a neat gingham frock. As a wartime economy, some smart little frocks are being made at home this year with surprisingly good results. And, so reasonable, too for many cost only about two dollars to make.

A college girl of good taste recently fashioned a good looking frock for herself of lettuce-green checked gingham. Six yards of material at twenty-five cents per yard were purchased, amounting to $1.50, and fifty cents was invested in a ready-made collar and cuff set of white organdie, making only $2 for the complete dress.

The skirt was made with three deep box plaits in back. These plaits were laid in, guided by the checks of the material and in this way were not difficult to make accurately. This is a good point for amateurs to remember, to use striped or checked material when planning a plaited model.

The simple blouse of this "gingham gown" was made with long sleeves. It was made surplice style, crossing in the front with ends extending and tied into a bow in front back. Long plain sleeves were featured and the dainty collar and cuff set of white organdie was added for smartness. This remarkably cool little dress for Summer mornings cost only two dollars to make at home.

Another smart model that is good to look upon which will give good service was a pink plaid gingham with a tucked white organdie vest.

Only five yards of gingham at 25 cents were needed for this frock, with one yard of fine lawn or organdie. Tucks were the main attraction on the plain two-piece skirt, and three fairly deep tucks were taken about half way down the skirt and the hem was then finished by the plaid stripes. A few gathers were used at the waist line.

The blouse that went with the tucked skirt was unusually smart. Made perfectly plain with three-quarter length sleeves and front was left open about six inches and filled in with a finely tucked bosom or vest. A deep shawl collar, cut rather low in front, was used across the neck and down the front to the waistline, outlining the vest.

For a finish, the edge of the shawl collar was hemstitched, but a tiny binding of the gingham would also be smart. A broad, deep sash of gingham was piped with white and buttoned directly in back with two pearl buttons, after the fashion of the newest frocks. This lovely little dress was much admired for its cool appearance, and cost less than $2 to make.

If you want a frock that will be good-looking and serviceable for the hot Summer days at the shore, mountains or in town, choose one of the lovely ginghams. And when you can make such a frock for less than $2 you need have no fear of the high cost of dressing. So be patriotic and economical and make yourself a gingham frock for Summer.

What Has Gone Before

Little Cecilia Madden, daughter of poor parents, wanders along Broadway and stops to admire some pink roses in a florist's window. Her enraptured attention attracts the notice of passers-by and noticeably increases the sale of the flowers within. The florist calls her in and gives her a dime, in spite of her protest that she would prefer a pink rose for her invalid mother. As roses are selling at fifty cents apiece, he tells her to run along.

ALWAYS ever since the terrible sickness had come to claim her three years before, Mary Madden had whipped off of pink roses—pink roses and the soft pink blossoms that bloomed on Irish moors—pink roses and the green of the soft moss at the edge of the whispering little streams of the Blackwater. The dim, gray-green hills of Tralee! Pink roses and the sunshine of happiness and beauty there was somewhere in the world.

A Bad Bargain

With her dime still clutched firmly in her hand, the little girl hurried away from Broadway and through a twisting, evil-smelling network of dark streets. At last she came to a little stand huddled back between two jutting buildings. In a glass case there were pink blossoms—full-blown pink roses, and the sign which read, "Hillarney's only a dollar a dozen."

Cecilia stopped and bargained sharply. At last the sharp-eyed vender gave her two roses—they were full-blown and pale colored, the sweetness had almost fled, but Cecilia was happy. She hurried down the streets and around a corner into a little open square. And then a great gust of wind came whipping over the buildings and blew lustily upon the roses in Cecilia's hands. The petals fell away! There remained green stems set with dusty yellow centres.

The little girl looked at them steadily and her lips set in a pale line. "No good cryin' over spilt milk—but I guess us Maddens wasn't intended to have any pink roses in our lives," said she.

Pink roses. . . . Ah, little Cecilia, who knows what the years will bring!

The Madden flat was bitterly cold in Winter and cruelly hot in Summer. It was small and sunless. Its furnishings were rickety and scarred. The kitchen smelled always of cooking—either the fried potatoes, which were Cecilia's piece de resistance, or the cabbage, which was the chief mainstay of the O'Reilly family in the flat below.

When Cecilia came home from her fruitless negotiation for the Killarneys that would have filled her mother's soul with joy, she found things—not worse than usual, but just as usual. Maw was in sad pain. Little brother Johnny had come from school and was hungry—cruelly hungry for something other than the interminable bread and potatoes and fried mush which the little cook fed him.

There were deep shadows under the little girl's eyes. Poets tell us how Irish eyes are set in with black smudges as if the hand of the sculptor who created the Irish had traveled its way across smoking peat bogs before it set those in place. The shadows under little Cecilia's eyes were bluish violet. They were caused by an endless procession of days like the one that was just drawing to a hot, sticky close.

Up at four to minister to the invalid, whose racking cough never let the little girl sleep peacefully —another hour of sleep and then up again to struggle with the flies which buzzed ceaselessly in the tiny little alcove bedroom where Cecilia and Johnny slept.

A Busy, Busy Day

At six the day's work began—there was father's breakfast to get, milk to heat for the invalid, the flat to tidy; then Johnny must be routed from bed, fed and started for school—next Cecilia must wash the breakfast dishes and hurry off for her session at school.

In the noon hour she hurried home to see how Maw was faring —then back to school again and home just after three to wash the lunch dishes left from Mary's brief repast, give Johnny a bite and get the supper ready.

No play, no friendships, no careless dancing to hurdy-gurdies, no delicious trips to the movies, or lingering in drug stores for ice cream sodas, no parading the streets with her arm entwined in her best friend's ever fell to Cecilia Madden's lot.

Being a mother to a nine-year-old boy before you are twelve is a bit of a problem, and when that boy takes a mischievous delight in thwarting you and has a selfish longing for all the things he cannot have, your lot isn't a bit easier.

Moral Suicide

A SERIAL OF LOVE AND LIFE

Fay Grows Angry When Told That Miss Lucy Calls on Beatrice and Not on Her

By Ann Lisle

(Novelized from the Successful Motion Picture Drama: Scenario by Ivan Abramson.)

Copyright, 1918, Graphic Film Corporation

"ONE thing you must promise me, Beatrice—tell me you'll never do a thing like this again. It would kill me if anything so horrible came to my sister. Promise me you won't die like this. Promise me, Beatrice."

The girl looked at the boy sadly: "It's asking too much—but I promise. Waverly, whatever happens to me, I'll bear it and fight my way through—if you ask me to. I'll do it for you, dear."

"Father has ordered me from the house and I'll have to go. But wherever I go and whatever I do, I'll come back to you—I'll come back to you—do you believe that?"

Waverly took his sister's hands. "Don't go far, Beatrice—my head aches all the time, and my heart's heavy. I don't understand some of the queer notions that come to me. Don't go far, dear."

"Waverly, darling brother — I wouldn't leave you, I'd manage to bear it—but father ordered me from the house. I'll come back though—I promise."

"And I'll stand by our poor old father while you're gone—you'd want me to do that, wouldn't you?" asked the boy.

"Laddy, I'm leaving him to you as a sacred trust. He needs you—he needs us both, though he doesn't know it yet. You'll look out for our poor old father, won't you?"

The girl laid her hands on her brother's shoulders and the two poor, frightened, harried children made each other their solemn promises—promises which were to cost more than life itself in the fulfilling.

"I'll go away—but I'll live and fight my way back to you," said the girl.

"And I'll take care of our father while you're gone," said the boy.

Then they kissed each other solemnly and Waverly crept away; he never dreamed that Beatrice would go out of his life that very evening. His youth made him believe in a respite, a miracle; but the girl's youth urged her to action. All through the long twilight she made her preparations, packed a little bag full of necessities, wrote a little note of farewell to Waverly and prepared for a long journey. At nightfall she crept out of her father's house.

When Rodman left his sweetheart, he was facing the truth uttered by the prophet of old, "For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind."

He plodded homeward drearily and wearily. Forgotten was all the joy of reunion with the brother he adored. Forgotten was the glory of homecoming. He was only conscious of one thing. There would be sanctuary in his brother's house. There he could give way to a man's grief without the shame of prying eyes.

Staggering, trembling, shaken by the agony he had seen on the face of the girl he loved, Rodman Daniels came at last to his brother's house. . . . In the quiet living room sat husband and wife; Lucy was sewing on dainty feminine garments that brought a new pang to Rodman's heart. George was watching her with absolute devotion in his eyes. Into their scene of sweet, understanding domesticity staggered the younger brother. This was his return.

All unashamed, Rodman sobbed out his misery to the man and woman who loved him.

"George, do you remember the night Uncle Richard announced his engagement?" asked Lucy.

"Now, isn't that just like a woman?" said the doctor, smiling indulgently at his little wife. "What has that to do with the case, dear?"

"Everything! Don't you remember that your Uncle Hubert Jones was put out of the house for suggesting that he knew something pretty bad about Fay? I remember his very words and the point where Uncle Richard interrupted him. This is what he said:

"'Why, she lured my own'—and then Uncle stammered him, Rodman, dear, I feel as if the story Uncle Hubert started to tell was your justification. Won't you confide in us, dear? Perhaps we can help you. Perhaps I can go over and talk to Fay. Perhaps only another woman would dare to do."

Rodman as well, because even then I thought the missing word was Fay. I don't know in what way which nephew she thought Uncle Hubert meant.

TO BE CONTINUED.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Why Worry?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl friend, A, has been engaged to a young man, C, two years her senior, for two years. Another girl, B, has known him since childhood. Now, Miss Fairfax, A and C love each other dearly; they keep no secrets from each other. A says she feels quite humble and out of place whenever she meets B, because B takes no pains to conceal her affection for C. C is respectable and loyal in every respect, but to me it doesn't seem quite fair that he should stand for anything like that from a girl who is older than he and who should know better than to say things like: "You were my first love. I love you, and I can never love another." That is only one of the things she has said to him. C is not a fickle young man, and I don't understand his attitude in this instance at all. It seems to me that if one word could end this he is the one to say it before it is too late. READER.

C PROBABLY has a masculine horror of saying anything to hurt a woman who likes him. B is an idiot, to say the least. The little fiances can afford to pity her. It would be a mean act to hurt a girl whose only crime is to care for him unasked, his sweetheart ought to be amiable and good natured about it and not "mean." After all, she has her lover; the other girl, the outsider, has only her folly.

The Elephant's Legs

The legs of the elephant differ from those of the more familiar large animals in the fact that the ankle and the wrist—the so-called knee of the horse's foreleg—are not far above the sole of the hind foot and forefoot—resembling man's joints in that respect—while the true knee-joint, called "the stifle" in horses, instead of being, as in horses, high up, close against the body, strongly flexed even when at rest, and covered by the skin, is far below the body, free and obvious enough. In fact the elephant keeps the thigh and the upper arm perpendicular, and in line with the lower segment of the limb when he is standing, so that the legs are pillar-like. But he bends the joints amply when it is quick movement. The hind legs are then in action, resemble, in the proportions of thigh, foreleg and foot, and the bending at the knee and ankle, very closely those of a man walking "on all fours."

TRAIN YOUR HAIR AS AN ACTRESS DOES

No class of people devotes as much time to beauty as do actresses, and no class must be more careful to retain and develop their charms. Inquiry develops the information that in hair care they find it dangerous to shampoo with any makeshift hair cleanser. The majority say that to have the best hair wash and scalp stimulator at a cost of about three cents, one need only get a package of Canthrox from your druggist; dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply it to all parts of the head, and finish the top of the head. After its use the hair dries rapidly, with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are quickly dissolved and entirely disappear, leaving the hair fluffy. After this your hair will be so fluffy it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains hair instead of just insures hair growth.—Advertisement

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face. This method is unfailing, harmless and quick in results, but care should be employed to get the genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

Women in War Work

By Elizabeth Ellam,

Special Agent, United States Employment Service, Department of Labor.

Dear Miss Ellam—(a) Where should a sixteen-year-old girl with three years' high school training apply for a clerical position for the government? (b) Where should I apply for work on a farm, and what are the wages?

Cambridge. M. B.

A SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD girl is too young to be considered at all for a clerical position for the government. The government requires two classes of workers, called clerical workers. The first is the clerk-bookkeeper and the other is the stenographer-bookkeeper. In each class experience is necessary as well as a civil service examination.

Practically the same reply could be made to the second question. You are too young for the regular farm work. The Women's National Farm and Garden Agency requires that a girl should be at least sixteen years of age, and in perfect health, before she is allowed to take up farm work. If you will look up some band of Girl Scouts in Cambridge, affiliate yourself with them, then perhaps you may have a chance at some of the farm work that they are doing.

Reply to R. G. M. of Everett—If you will write to the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General in Washington, D. C., or to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, you will receive complete information, together with application blanks, regarding the position about which you are inquiring.

Dear Miss Ellam—I am a young girl, twenty-two years old, and at present am working in an office. As they are putting girls to work on the farm, I wish to inquire about it. I have never lived on a farm, but I have always cared about being out of doors and working "near to nature." I am discontented with office work, as I do not get any exercise or air. I am not afraid of work. I could start in August, if that is not too late. G. G.

Boston.

Mrs. William A. Copeland, at No. 4 Joy street, at the headquarters of the Women's National Farm and Garden Agency, will receive your application for farm work and will tell you what the wages are. Girls who have farm labor have, in addition to a wage, their board and room furnished them, of course.

To M. J. R., Boston—I believe that you will find the opportunity that you are seeking to do volunteer clerical work by applying to the National Civic Federation, No. 29 Ashburton place. There are volunteer clerical corps there, whose services are requisitioned as need arises. I think that it is from this source that the draft boards draw their workers, when there is a call for them. You will be obliged to register there, and you will be put in a special corps for service. The entire corps is called for work when it is to be done.

Miss A. O'S., East Boston—Your letter, though an admirable one, is too long for publication. Your sentiments are praiseworthy, and I really think it should not be difficult to find just the proper place for service.

Why do you not write to the Navy Nurse Corps, Red Cross Office, chief of staff, in Washington, D. C., for enrollment in that branch service? Here, the educational restriction has been removed, although registration of a nurse in her State is required for enrollment.

If this fails you, there is still another opportunity for service that I feel sure is open. There are to be a number of military training schools for nurses opened in connection with base hospitals in the camps.

GOOD JOBS FOR CARPENTERS IN NITRO, VA.

Government Commandeers Farm Help to Aid Agriculturists of that Place

By THOMAS F. PHELAN, United States Farm Labor Agent.

There is a scarcity of labor in Nitro, W. Va., so much so that Uncle Sam has stepped in to supply the demand. The government is engaged in war work in that section. Farm hands have been commandeered, laborers imported from all sections, and now an appeal is made to the AMERICAN farm labor agent at the quarters of the United States Employment Service, No. 33 Canal street, to assist in rounding up 300 carpenters to be shipped there at once. Alien enemies are barred. First-class carpenters will be able to earn from $60 to $70 a week there. Applicants should apply to W. H. Burke at the Canal street office.

Long lines of men extended into the street from the Canal street office yesterday and from 9.30 a. m. till 3 p. m. it was figured that at least 1,200 called and registered for employment. Every applicant for work was well-dressed. Some said they were giving up positions in which they had been for years in order to get higher wages paid for skilled and unskilled labor in all sections of the country. At least forty accepted jobs on farms in New Hampshire and Vermont. There is still a demand for milkers, poultry men and farmhands.

EXTRA HELP HIRED.

Because of the increase of business at the Canal street office, due to the publicity given the place by the AMERICAN, extra help has been hired by the government to care for the wants of the unemployed.

SAYS SERVICE IS 25 PER CENT OF BUSINESS

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

The Sandow Motor Truck Company of New England, located at Nos. 1-3 Brighton avenue, Boston, has completed its sales and service organization. Clifton M. Thayer, who has been identified with the automobile industry for the past twelve years and is thoroughly versed in problems pertaining to transportation and service, is in charge of the company. Mr. Thayer was formerly president and general manager of the Thayer-Griffith Company, the largest trucking concern in the East, and has since been manager of the used truck department of the Packard Motor Car Company.

Through his efforts, the Sandow Motor Truck Company of New England has been able to obtain the service of four of Boston's leading truck salesmen, namely, Mr. James W. Hatcliffe, Mr. William H. Whitney, Mr. Jack Moss and Mr. Edward McCarren, formerly identified with the Signal, Packard, Gramm-Bernstein and Selden, respectively. In securing the services of these men, he feels that Sandow will have a representation second to none.

Mr. Thayer states that his trucking experience has been that a truck is 25 per cent. truck and 75 per cent. service. Selling the Sandow line, he has established, and will maintain a night and day service, he in station subject to call at any hour. In a resent interview he said:

"We are well supplied with parts and can duplicate any part for the Sandow truck at a moment's notice. With the Sandow truck motor remover, incorporated in the construction of our truck, it is possible to remove the motor and substitute with a service motor in three hours' time, avoiding any unnecessary delay on the part of the owner, and losing absolutely no time from the use of service to his truck. This is only one of the many features of the Sandow construction."

WOMEN BLAMED BY BAY STATE CONDUCTOR

Demand Transfers on Midday Tickets When "Zone" Plan Forbids It, He Declares

Women passengers with "Midday City Tickets" cause the most trouble in the new fare system of the Bay State Street Railway Company, according to a Lynn conductor.

"The women cannot see why they must pay extra to ride beyond the traffic centre.

A conductor on a Lakeside-West Lynn run relieved his feelings today as follows:

"The hardest passengers I have to deal with under the new fare system are women riding on these so-called 'Midday City tickets,' which are sold six for a quarter and which are good to Central square from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

"The women don't see why they cannot ride beyond the traffic centre in Central square without paying extra fare.

ENMIST ON TRANSFERS.

"During my first day under the new system at least a dozen women demanded transfers to other lines running beyond Central square, after tending 'Midday City tickets' in payment of their fares.

"The men do not give much of an argument. They are willing to abide by the rules of the company and pay whatever fare is asked.

"Nearly all the conductors I talked with had experiences similar to mine. They said that the women insisted on getting transfers on midday city tickets to some point beyond Central square."

It was reported today that some new crews at West Lynn car barn, on the upper and lower Swampscott and Wyoma lines, are to be laid off at the end of the first day of the new fare system because they would rather try trolley work in some other place than even seek some different line of work, rather than have so many arguments with passengers.

It would help conductors a great deal if passengers would have change when they board cars, how far they are going. A sample of this was seen on a Revere Beach-Boston car today. This car started from the Revere Beach end of the line at Ocean avenue and Revere Beach boulevard with no passengers. Then it picked up new fares after the car has passed Revere City Hall.

Nearly all the passengers offered the conductor a dime or quarter, as the case might be, but said nothing about their destination until the conductor asked: "Going through beyond Revere City Hall?"

Some passengers, who were going through, offered their old-time fare of six cents. If the conductor had not taken pains to quarry them, they would have secured no identification check and would have got to pay six cents more to complete their trip, instead of the extra two cents required in the first place.

"BEATING" THE COMPANY.

It was noticeable that a number of passengers who had been accustomed to board this car before it arrived at Revere City Hall, walked to that point and saved the extra two cents fare. This was done on the run from Boston out to Revere. They would get off at Revere City Hall and walk home.

The conductor said he found that the fare collection coin boxes and the new rule about letting passengers on at both ends of the car gave some passengers a chance to "beat the company" the first day. Now that the complex removed all the coin boxes and we have to let passengers on and off at both doors. That gives some persons a chance to get off by the front door when the conductor is busy collecting fares in the rear of the car. On my own hook I told the motorman finally not to let anyone on by the front door. I made them get on at the back door and pay as they entered."

DEMOCRACY BOSTON, TUESDAY, JUNE 25, 1918. LIBERTY

800 AT DEVENS BECOME SONS OF U. S.

Alien Soldiers in Boston Regiments Take Oath of Allegiance to Country of Adoption

Camp Devens, June 25.—Eight hundred alien soldiers of Boston, members of the 302d, 303d and 304th infantry regiments, were sworn in as citizens of the United States yesterday afternoon by Judge James M. Morton, Jr., of the United States District Court.

The ceremony took place in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The preliminary examinations were made at one time at a time and after the entire number had been polled the oath of allegiance was administered.

Two thousand more soldiers arrived today from Camp Upton, N. Y., and were assigned to companies in the Depot Brigade. Some companies of the Depot Brigade have 400 men in them and the accommodations in the cantonment are becoming more and more limited. It is believed the men who came from Camp Upton will be made part of the new division along with the 5,000 New England draftees due here this week.

The first of the 1,000 men from Maine also arrived today and were checked in by Lieutenant George E. Waite and his assistants at the receiving station. The rest of the Maine men are expected in by tomorrow night and they will be followed by the New Hampshire men on Wednesday.

Lieutenant George O'Neil of the Eighth Regiment, Royal Rifles of Canada, who was drafted and sent to this cantonment as an alternate from Wiscasset, Me., while he was on furlough from the Canadian army, has been discharged and has returned to New York to resume his supervision of the Emergency Fleet Corporation's shipbuilding program.

Fred Maloney of Worcester was discharged from the service January 5 of this year because of a dependent wife and child, has returned and reenlisted in Co. B of the 301st Ammunition Train, his former command.

Major-General Harry F. Hodges, Brigadier-General Ruckman of the Department and the Adjutant and several other superior officers stationed at this cantonment witnessed the drilling up of 1,500 pounds of dynamite by the 301st Engineers under the direction of Major Norman F. Deane. The dynamite, it is believed, that has been yet released at a National Army cantonment, and gave those who were present an excellent idea of what the engineers of the 76th Division may be called on to do to enemy fortifications once they get into action.

EDITORIAL

Evidently German propagandists have been telling aliens in the National Army that American citizenship holds nothing for them. It has caused a handful of aliens to hesitate about becoming naturalized, but it is only a handful. Some of the aliens have become imbued with the idea that they will be unable to get over to France whether they are naturalized or otherwise.

This is not so and it is the duty of every American born soldier to impress upon the minds of this class of aliens that they will be sent into action against the common enemy just as fast as the Government needs them, provided, of course, they are physically fit, and properly trained. The naturalization of 6,000 alien soldiers at Camp Devens should open the eyes of the few who misunderstand the fact that American citizenship does mean something to them—something that is worth having.

VISIT RECEIVING SHIP ON TOUR OF DUTY

Rear Admiral Peoples and Pay Director Mudd Inspect Paymaster's Office

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, June 25.—Rear Admiral Peoples, in charge of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts at Washington, and Pay Director Mudd, chief supply officer of the First Naval District, paid a visit to this ship Monday.

They made a thorough inspection of the quarters of Paymaster William O'Brien's new department, the Naval Overseas Transportation Agency. They asked many questions as to the details of the work and the system employed and highly commended the office personnel and its accomplishments.

The new department is fast getting into shape to handle the big rush of business connected with the fitting out of the ships that are to be inducted into the service of transporting supplies and troops abroad. It is expected that on the Fourth of July forty ships for the new service will be launched, and that some of these will be sent to the ship to be put in to shape for sea duty.

The office of the commanding officer has been exceedingly cramped ever since the ship was launched and it was anticipated that it would prove very uncomfortable during the warm days that are presumably on the way.

Commander W. A. Edgar, however, has succeeded in having plans carried out whereby he has transferred his headquarters to a part of the space formerly occupied by the armored division and has now one of the largest, lightest and most satisfactory offices on board the Commonwealth.

ANDREW SQUARE STATION OPEN SATURDAY

"Matt Brush's Big Garage," is the people of Dorchester are now calling the new Andrew square station of the Elevated, will open for business with the first cars that are run Saturday morning.

Opening of the new station will cut about five minutes from the travel time of Dorchester and Roxbury passengers to the centre of the city.

Passengers coming into the prepayment area from the tunnel will board cars for Ashmont, Milton, Neponset, Fields Corner, Meeting House Hill, Geneva Avenue, Columbia Road, Franklin Park, Dudley Street and Milton. Those who board cars will leave the Ellery street end of the station, passing through Southampton street to Andrew square.

SEVERAL CAR CHANGES.

South Boston surface cars will continue to run to Broadway lower level, and a shuttle service will be established between Andrew square and Broadway.

Neponset bridge cars are to have their terminal at the new station instead of at Dudley street, and the Dorchester street-Fields corner line will be discontinued.

Dorchester street cars will in future be run between Broadway and L street.

PRIVATE PAYS TRIBUTE TO CHAPLAIN DANKER

Marlboro, June 25.—"His example would make a hero out of anyone," is the tribute paid to the Rev. Walton S. Danker, chaplain of the 104th Regiment, who recently died from wounds in France, by Private Thomas F. McEnelly of Company K, that regiment, in a letter just received here.

"Nice, but isn't our chaplain a brave fellow!" he wrote, probably only a few days before Chaplain Danker was fatally wounded. "He was out in a fire where the Boches were putting over shells in great volume and rapidity.

"Chaplain Danker was helping the wounded and encouraging the other boys to keep up the fight. He was right around after we got out of the trenches, as happy as a lark."

WOMEN AND CLOTHES IN WAR TIME

FIRST OF SIX ARTICLES BY MRS. VERNON CASTLE

BLACK FOR MOURNING? OR GRAY?

SUNDAY ADVERTISER JUNE 30 1918

Mrs. Vernon Castle.

Only a day or two ago, it seems, and the young women of America were copying Irene Castle's Dutch bonnets, the cut of her hair, the way she banded her forehead.

And here she is in widow's weeds, discussing:

Black for mourning—or gray?

The first of a series of six fashion articles to appear exclusively in the Boston Sunday ADVERTISER and AMERICAN.

"Is it right for us to shroud our country in black?" asks Mrs. Castle.

"To impress others with our loss?"

"To spread the country with a general atmosphere of gloom?"

"Should we not, so far as we are able, keep our spirits up, if not for ourselves, for the purpose of giving courage to those of our men who are coming home for comfort and a little sunshine?"

Mrs. Castle votes for gray.

A series for feminine America.

Two Ways of Hoarding Money

Do YOUR Hoarding in the Patriotic Way

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company

Hoard your money—in the right way.

There are two kinds of hoarding, one based on selfish fear and ignorance. The hoarder puts his money in a strong box, or an old teapot, or the bottom of a trunk, and thinks himself safe.

Fire or thieves may ruin him. And, in any case, his money is wasted, worthless, doing nothing for him and nothing for the nation.

Money is labor in the form of cash, and as the man who earns it works while he earns, so money should be kept working and producing after it is earned. Dollars locked up and hidden away are as worthless as men in a prison or an insane asylum.

In war, the dollar wisely used fights for this country like a well-armed man. Every citizen should keep every dollar at work—even the loose change—harnessing it up in the shape of war stamps for the quarters and dollars and Liberty Bonds for larger amounts.

The Government lets you become a patriotic hoarder on a basis that produces the following three remarkable results:

First—You cannot lose your money; it cannot be stolen.

Second—While it is hoarded beyond all possible reach of danger, it is earning liberal interest for you; every hour, working or sleeping, you are gradually getting richer.

Third—In addition to being safe, and earning interest for you, the money wisely hoarded in Government Bonds or War Stamps is actually at work fighting for your country.

To your children, to the many who look upon finance as a mystery, it is your duty, because you know more, to explain the facts every day. Such explanation is useful, necessary war work.

We have tried to put these things here extremely simply, as you will do, in urging wise patriotic money hoarding represented by purchase of Government War Stamps and Bonds.

Urge your friends to buy War Stamps. There are men in this country that would gladly buy millions of dollars' worth of them if the Government would permit it. But these War Stamps that pay COMPOUND INTEREST represent a great financial saver that the Government has devised for the benefit of the man of small means.

No one person may own more than one thousand dollars' worth of these stamps.

Carnegie, Rockefeller, dozens of others would buy them by the millions if allowed. As far away as the Argentine Republic intelligent people are investing their money in these War Stamps, seizing the opportunity never known before, and never to be known again, to invest money at compound interest which means interest on the interest.

A man, for himself and his children, should collect War Stamps as a matter of regular routine. No man who works is unable to do it.

When you buy Government securities you are hoarding money in the only safe way, and you are putting your money in the shape of savings at work with the Army and Navy.

Government Saves Millions for State in Flour and Sugar

The Committee of One Hundred on the Public Safety in Massachusetts had a very interesting meeting Friday. The chairmen of the several sub-committees made their reports to the general committee, Mr. Ratchesky speaking for the committee on the relief of Halifax, Mr. Storrow speaking for the committee on the supply of fuel and Mr. Endicott for the executive committee generally and for the food administration particularly.

The good work of this committee has appeared very clearly in the reports of these gentlemen, and the people of the State have reason to be grateful for the services of the committees and of their chairmen. Mr. Endicott, who in this war crisis in Massachusetts has been omnipresent and almost omniscient, gave us some very interesting facts about what had been accomplished to save the people in their cost of living. He told us that if the Government had not fixed a maximum charge for sugar that the price would now be twenty-five cents or more a pound. Mr. Endicott estimated that the Government had thus saved for the people of Massachusetts alone on the price they are required to pay for sugar not less than twenty-five million dollars. And Massachusetts is only one of the forty-eight States of our Union. Mr. Endicott declared also that flour would now be over forty dollars a barrel if the Government had not fixed a price upon it, forbidding it to be sold for more.

Mr. Endicott estimated that the Government thus saved for the people of Massachusetts alone on the price they have to pay for flour between forty and fifty million dollars. And Massachusetts is only one of forty-eight States. Think of the millions and millions of dollars which have been saved for the people of this country in the cost of living and by the fixing of maximum charges upon these two items alone!

What becomes of the law of supply and demand so complacently put forth by the old Manchester School and so dogmatically taught in our colleges? The manufacturers and the big exploiters have for years laughed up their sleeves at this old Manchester School nonsense. They were anxious to have it advocated in the colleges because the basis of the philosophy of the Manchester School is non-interference by the Government with the anarchistic processes of commerce and industry. This is a very convenient doctrine for pirates and highwaymen. Dick Turpin and Captain Kidd were strenuous advocates of the same philosophy on the high seas, except when they managed to get a helpless ship under their guns. Thus, also, the big special interests in America advocate the teaching of non-interference by the Government with the law of supply and demand, while at the same time they corrupt the Government's agents to give them all kinds of extortionate tariffs and they organize tremendous monopolies, all for the purpose of interfering with the law of supply and demand for their own benefit.

Mr. Hearst Stands for Full Compliance With Censor's Rule on Films

In Letter to President of Universal Company Urges Support of Government Action

New York, June 24.—The following letter was written today by William Randolph Hearst to Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Company:

My Dear Mr. Laemmle:

I am sorry to see any moving picture people affected with the rabies of petty jealousy that afflicts some of our minor newspapers. I am sorry to see any effort to create dissension among our people and to harass and embarrass our government during war times.

I know that you are superior to any small sentiment of business rivalry and unwilling to encourage any policy of malignity and misrepresentation. Therefore, I address this letter to you.

I assure you that Mr. Creel's statement published in this morning's papers is true and, in my opinion, sound in every particular.

DID NOT KNOW OF UNIVERSAL FILM.

I not only had no part in interfering with the exhibition of the Universal film in question, but I did not even know that the Universal Company had such a film and purposed exhibiting it.

I have made what little success I have had in life by attending to my own business and not attempting to interfere with the business of anybody else. And I have noticed that the people who spend their time being jealous of others generally have very little time left to construct any success for themselves.

It is true that a great many men from my various institutions have been drafted into the service of the various departments of the United States Government. But you must remember that I have a great many institutions—magazine, newspaper, moving picture and other business—and a great many good men, and that partly accounts for this fact.

I do not rejoice at having my good men taken from me, and at one time I wrote a letter to Mr. Creel complaining of the fact that he was taking so many men that were essential to the successful continuation of my enterprises.

Here follows the letter that I wrote in reference to Mr. Hart, one of the men mentioned by your Mr. Cochrane as being in the service of this Public Information Committee of the Government:

MR. HEARST'S LETTER TO MR. CREEL.

"March 13, 1918.

"My Dear Mr. Creel:

"Will you please let me know when you will be in New York again and when I can see you?

"I am very greatly disturbed over the departure of Mr. Hart. Of course, I want to do everything possible to help you and to help the country in this crisis, and am willing to make any sacrifice to that end.

"You took Sisson, the editor of the Cosmopolitan, and I did not protest, although we missed him greatly, but Hart is a loss that I do not know how to repair.

"He wrote me regarding my advice. I told him to do what he thought was his duty, and I still adhere to that stand. If you need him sufficiently it is his duty to go, and you should take him, no matter what happens to us.

"But if you do not need him greatly or if you do not need him long, do give him back to us when you can. He was very essential in our organization.

"Very sincerely yours,

"WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

"Mr. George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, Washington, D. C."

Mr. Creel replied that he did not intend to weaken my institutions by taking away our essential men, but I felt ashamed of myself after having written such a letter and replied again to Mr. Creel, telling him to take anybody he liked. I felt that any sacrifice of ourselves or our institutions was obligatory if we could thus aid the Government in time of war.

You will see, however, that these men were not taken at my suggestion and for my advantage, but to the distinct disadvantage of my business.

All these men taken by the Government are very fine, honorable gentlemen and in their government positions they would lean backward as far as the Hearst institutions are concerned and give the Hearst institutions less, perhaps, than an even break with other institutions in any matter which might come under their control. This is exactly what I would wish them to do, and this is exactly what they have done.

I have no desire to have any favor shown my institutions by the Government that is not shown to every other institution; and I feel that there should be no favoritism of any kind to any institution. I think that Government news and pictures and privileges and opportunities should be extended to all institutions absolutely equally and alike.

I believe that such a policy would be best for the business institutions of the country that deal with Government publicity. And I believe such a policy would also be best for the Government, resulting in the greatest money return to the Government and in the widest distribution of the information which the Government desires disseminated.

ALL SHOULD ADHERE TO CENSOR'S RULES.

I most certainly think, however, that every newspaper or moving picture enterprise, or institution of any kind employed in the business of publicity, should adhere strictly to the censorship rules of the Government, and in no way endeavor to depart from them or take advantage of them.

These rules are made in the interest of our army and our navy and our people during war time, and it is a thousand times better to sacrifice all individual advantages of private enterprises than it is to jeopardize in the slightest particular the welfare of our army and our navy and our people during the war.

I am sure that Mr. Creel's rules and regulations are prompted by the utmost sincerity and deepest patriotic devotion, and also by a very superior order of intelligence.

It should be my part and your part, therefore, to conform to these regulations and restrictions exactly, and to support Mr. Creel and all other departments of the Government in the great work that they are endeavoring to do and which we must all acknowledge they are successfully accomplishing.

I am sure that you, Mr. Laemmle, as a very big man in the moving picture business, are anxious to do this; and I do not think that Mr. Cochrane speaks for you in his criticism of the Government.

As far as his criticism of me is concerned, it is utterly baseless and absurd, but wholly unimportant. Still, I am so used to baseless and foolish criticism of that character that I no longer pay any attention to it.

I believe, however, as I said in the beginning, that efforts to create dissension among our people and to complicate and aggravate the difficult tasks before our Government are mischievous, and I call this particular matter to your attention, realizing full well that you, as a patriotic citizen and a broad-minded man, will agree with me.

Very sincerely yours,

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Carl Laemmle, Esq., President Universal Film Manufacturing Company, No. 1600 Broadway, New York City.

MANY FAMILY DISPUTES ON INSURANCE QUESTION

By Winifred Black

THEY have only been married a year, and they are quarreling. They don't quarrel all the time—sometimes they kiss and make up, and then everything is sweet and lovely for days together. But then the grocery bill comes in, or somebody doesn't call who said they would, or someone rings up on the 'phone who ought not to ring up, and the air is tense—and then the old quarrel breaks out anew.

They began by having sulks, and then by being injured, and after that by open accusations, and now the little bride, who was so happy she could scarcely believe it just one little year ago, says she wishes she were dead, and some of the time she almost means it.

And the man who just a year ago would have felt like suicide at the very thought of losing this girl for his wife sometimes wishes—and wishes aloud—that he had never even heard her name at all.

And it's all about an insurance policy. Just a mean, little, measly insurance policy for a mean, little two thousand dollars. The man made it out to his mother long before he ever met the girl, and now she thinks he ought to change it and make it out to her.

Why Change Policy?

She says she has turned over all of her own little savings to their joint account at the bank and is trying to save for him and with him, and she doesn't see why he should keep his life insurance policy made out to his mother.

The man says it's all right, because he knows his mother would turn it right over to his wife if he should die, and his wife and her friends say yes, she will, when she hates the wife like poison and doesn't take the least pains to hide it, even now.

And it's all very sordid and mean and bitter and discouraging, and I wish they hadn't written to me about it, but they have, and here I am writing in answer as if I were that poor, hard-working demon summoned by the rub of a lamp when all the world was young and Aladdin wore his turban of sea green with the sapphire jewels.

Change the life insurance from his mother to his wife? Why should he? Has his wife taken care of him for over twenty years, and did she lie awake nights and listen to every breath he drew? Did she give half her life to bring him into the world? Did she sacrifice her friends, her youth itself, to him?

Needs It Most

Why shouldn't the man give something to his mother, especially if he has been in some measure her support? What's going to become of her when he dies, if he doesn't leave something to her? His wife is young, vigorous probably, and she ought to be able to take care of herself in case her husband should die and leave her alone.

Of course, if he is the right sort of man he wants to look out for her, so if it should have to be between the two the money should go to the one who needs it most, who is oldest and most helpless and most dependent, and to whom he is under the most obligation.

If I had a wife who quarreled with me about my life insurance I should be sorry I had ever met her, and if I had a husband who wanted to make me put all my little savings in a joint bank account I would begin to wonder just how long I could stand it to live in the same house with him.

RETREAT

By CHARLES BLAIR LYNCH, Sixty-third Infantry, San Francisco Presidio

THE sun is lighting watch-fires in the west,
And flings a flaming challenge to the Hun
In fire-tipped tents that house a nation's best,
Whose page of pain and glory is begun.
Beneath a sky of amethyst and rose
Columbia's sinewart legions, lean and brown,
Stand at salute the while a bugle blows—
The flag is fluttering down.

Thus, only, shall its starry folds descend,
At even gently lowered to their rest,
By those who proudly serve it, to the end
That every star by all the world be blest.
Never in battle shall the Colors droop,
Nor boasting foemen bow them in defeat;
Only at even, to a reverent troop,
Shall bugle sound "Retreat!"

U. S. DEPOSITS HIT ROMANCE OF ICELAND CRYSTALS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE very interesting statement has just come from Dr. C. L. Parsons of the Bureau of Mines, Washington, that large deposits of pure calcite have been found in Montana, and that the crystals occurring there "appear to be the nearest approach to Iceland spar yet uncovered in any part of the world." This is great news for many workers in science, for large, pure, transparent crystals of calcite are rarer than first-water diamonds, besides being incomparably more useful.

Calcite is a native carbonate of calcium, and calcium is the element out of which the great limestone hills, the vast chalk deposits, and the beautiful marbles of the earth have been formed. Fossil shells and corals, that carry the geological history of life back hundreds of millions of years, were built up from calcium carbonate.

Calcite crystals are found in many parts of the earth, but, hitherto, there has been only one place where they were found large enough and clear enough to serve as instruments for scientific investigation, and that place is near the middle of the east coast of Iceland, close by the Reidar fiord, in a cavern about ten feet high, fifteen wide, and not much more than twice as long as broad, which, when discovered some three centuries ago, was stuffed with magnificent rhombohedral crystals, some of which were three feet in diameter.

"Optically Perfect" Crystals

And from that time to this that little cavern in the basaltic mass of the volcanic rock-flower of the northern ocean, crowned with the white peaks of Hekla, has remained virtually the sole source known to man of "optically perfect" calcite crystals, although of late it has been failing in its supply of first-class material.

And yet calcium is and has always been one of the most abundant substances on the earth. So excessively rare are some of nature's most exquisite performances! So infrequently does she repeat a masterstroke!

But what, then, are the powers, or properties, that give so great distinction to Iceland spar! These crystals produce the phenomenon of double refraction. A ray of light sent through one of them is split into two pencils, one of which is bent out of its original course more than the other, so that objects seen through the crystal appear double. That is a brief statement of the property of Iceland spar which first made it famous.

More than that, it was the finding of the strange crystal cave in Iceland that led to the discovery of double refraction itself, for it was not until Erasmus Bartholinus, of Copenhagen, in 1669, or thereabouts, while examining one of the crystals that had come into his possession saw objects doubled by it, that science first learned of the existence of such a phenomenon.

While Huygens was experimenting with the first of the two newly discovered phenomena he became aware of the existence of the second, the Iceland crystal being the agent of revelation in both cases. With the exception of the lodestone there is no other specially endowed substance turned out from nature's laboratory that has put science under obligations as deep as those which it owes to Iceland spar.

Affects Every-Day Life

While it would require an article by itself—and that one not very easy to write or to follow—to explain scientifically the phenomena of double refraction and polarization, yet their importance to science, and through science to civilization, can be indicated in a few words. Such instruments as polarizing microscopes, polariscopes, polarimeters, saccharimeters, dichroscopes, etc., which owe their usefulness to the properties of Iceland spar, all depend for their action upon the phenomena mentioned, and place in the hands of science means of investigating the intimate nature of solutions, the properties of crystals, etc., all having a bearing upon the affairs of every day life.
